First Clinics Are Scheduled for Sunday

Bryan Urges Everyone in County Get Vaccine

Everyone in the Warren area is urged to visit one of the clinics set up throughout the county Sunday for a booster polio vaccine "shot," Dr. Ross E. Bryan, chairman of the project sponsored by the Warren County Medical Society, said this morning.

"Whether you have received the Sabin oral polio previously at the clinics set up two years ago or not," Dr. Bryan said, "please try to visit a clinic this Sunday. Bring with you the coupon in today's Times-Mirror."

Dr. Bryan said he wanted to clarify the term "booster" since there seems to be a little confusion as to why a booster is recommended.

There are two ways to develop immunity in the body to any disease, he pointed out. One is to actually have the disease. The other is to take a vaccine against the disease.

In either case, the body develops substances known as antibodies, which then circulate in the blood stream to fight the disease.

"Over a period of years, after you have either had the disease or received the vaccine," Dr. Bryan said, "the level of these antibodies drops and, therefore, the level of immunity gradually goes down."

"A booster is simply the same as the vaccine," he stated, "except that it is given after the body has already learned how to produce a specific antibody and to raise the level of immunity already established."

Dr. Bryan urges on behalf of the medical society that everyone receive a booster "shot" to be on the safe side.

The Sabin vaccine is very new, he pointed out, and the doctors have not yet had time to determine how often a booster should be given. They are urging the booster now, he said, two years after the vaccine was administered in 1962, because they want to make every effort to keep Warren County polio free.

This time, Dr. Bryan pointed out, it will be necessary to visit a clinic only once if the vaccine was received in 1962.

All three types—Type 1, Type 2 and Type 3—have been combined into one, a new development in the Sabin oral polio vaccine. In the future, he said, those who receive the vaccine Borough Council will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers in the Municipal Building.

Included on the agenda are the first reading of an ordinance regarding parking on East St. and parking on Third Ave. west at East Street School and the election of drivers and hosemen in the fire department.

The Glade Township Taxpayers League will meet at Fire Hall on Sept. 14 at 8 p.m.

Topics for discussion will include a report on the petitions against the proposed zoning of the township and Commissioner Blain M. Mead's proposal to dissolve the county planning commission.

All township taxpayers are urged to attend.

The Warren Library Association will hold its annual meeting Sept. 21 in the main reading room of the library at 8 p.m.

All members of the association and friends of the library are invited to attend.

Refreshments will be served.

Campaign headquarters for the Warren Concert Association have been established at 113 Market St. in the office of Basil White, and will be open starting Monday, Sept. 13 from 10 to 12 and from 2 to 4:30.

Chairmen of the campaign, Mrs. J. H. DeFrees and Mrs. J. O. Woodbridge, have set aside this day for former captains and workers on the campaign who are again lending their assistance to come to the headquarters and pick up the same list of prospects that they had in previous years, if they desire.

Mrs. Robert Ruthven is in charge of the headquarters.

The cost of parking in Warren borough this week netted a total of $542.25 according to tabulations by Jim Loding at the post office.

Chest Advance Gifts Unit Kickoff Slated for Monday

The advance gifts solicitation for the 1964 Community Chest campaign for $104,400 gets underway Monday noon when workers in the Corporate and Executive Gifts Section of the Industrial Division meet to receive their assignments.

WITH EDWARD A. Ryberg as chairman and Richard T. Betts as vice chairman, this section has enrolled six teams to call on executives of the area for their personal and their company's corporate pledges.

The six team captains are William R. Walker, president of Walker Creamery Products Co.; John Kirk, vice president of National Forge Co.; Harland J. Rue, vice president of New Process Co.; Charles L. McMillen, district manager of Pennsylvania Electric Co.; Robert Marlin, division purchasing agent, Sylvania; and Stewart Beckley, president of C. Beckley, Inc.

TAKING PART in Monday's kickoff will be General Chairman James C. Torrance, Community Chest President Donald E. Conaway, Ryberg and Betts.

Last year the corporate and executive gifts produced over $32,000 and set the stage for a successful campaign. Each of the more than 200 executives will receive a personal call from a volunteer worker and will be asked to throw full support behind the current drive.

THIS YEAR'S goal is the highest in history yet will only allow the ten local agencies to maintain their present services to Warren County and take care of inflationary costs increases. The agencies have not received an increase in Chest funds since 1960.

Monday's kickoff is one of four planned this fall. The Special Gifts Division and the Industrial employee solicitation begin September 21; The Business Division opens its drive September 28; the Professional, Public Service and Residential divisions kickoff on October 5.

The volunteer members of the executive and corporate gifts section meeting on Monday in

U.S. Eyes Viet War End by Negotiation

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. officials say they believe it may become possible to negotiate an end to the war in South Viet Nam, but only after Red China and North Viet Nam are convinced they are backing a losing aggression.

Whether the anti-Communist fighting will have to be expanded beyond the borders of South Viet Nam before that result is achieved is one of the questions left open following the consultations here this week of Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor with President Johnson and other U.S. policy makers.

Taylor, who left Washington Thursday night to return to Saigon, said he is sure the South Vietnamese struggle "will end victoriously from our point of view."

But he declined to speculate on when it would end and he said this is not the time to talk about negotiations.

When asked if there had been any discussion in the conferences this week about an armistice with the Reds, Taylor replied "absolutely not."

The sessions confirmed two immediate major objectives in South Vietnamese policy.

The most important of these purposes, according to reports coming out of the sessions at the White House and State Department, is the formation of a stable South Vietnamese government in Saigon as quickly as possible.

Taylor is understood to have reported to President Johnson and others here that U.S.-backed Premier Nguyen Khanh has come to be regarded even by his political foes in Saigon as an almost indispensable man at the moment.

Taylor feels he is the one man who has broad support among major elements of the Vietnamese population, including politically powerful Buddhists, the Catholics and the military.

The other objective on which a start is expected in the immediate future is a clean-up of Communist guerrilla forces in the four provinces immediately around Saigon.

Officials said Taylor had received assurances from Premier Khanh that he intended to go forward with the operation without delay, even during the government reorganization.

In discussing the larger and long-range aspects of the South Vietnamese conflict, officials said, Taylor expressed the view that it would not be won by

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida, staggered by the one-two punch of hurricanes Cleo and Dora, looked with apprehension today at hurricane Ethel, spinning slowly toward it from the Atlantic.

Although it was too early to tell where Ethel would go, her center was whipping along the same path taken by Dora.

Dora, meanwhile, slashed through the Florida Panhandle while a top-level inspection team planned to survey the vast sweep of destruction she inflicted on Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Brunswick, Ga.

The team was sent by President Johnson who declared all sections of Georgia and Florida battered by Dora a major disaster area.

Preliminary estimates put damage in the tens of millions of dollars.

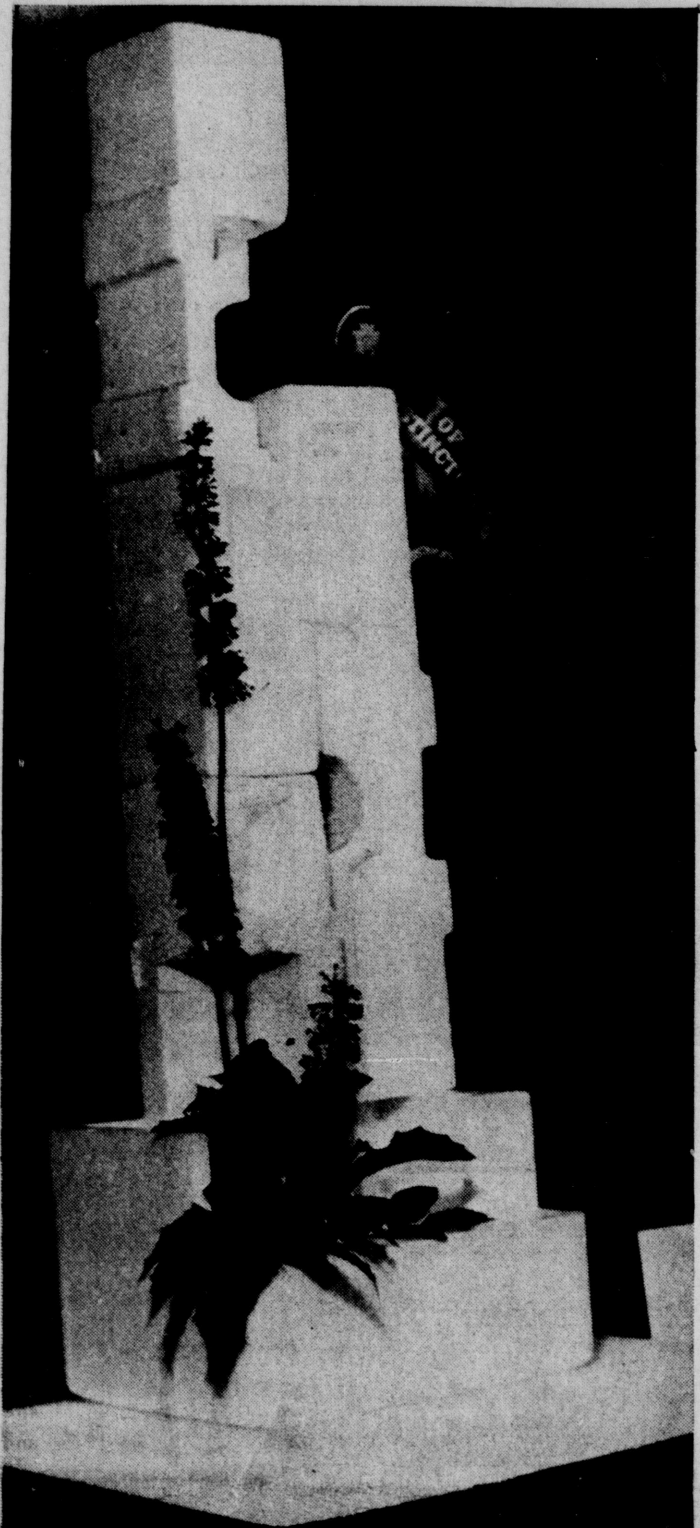

Dora lost her strength during a rainy trek across northern Florida and was downgraded to a tropical storm with peak winds estimated at 60 miles per hour. Dora was expected to continue moving west, with perhaps a slight turn to the north, and gradually wear herself out.

Gales lashed the state capital of Tallahassee and other parts of thinly populated northern Florida for hours during the night, but little damage was reported other than minor flooding.

Highest winds recorded inland were less than 50 m.p.h.

Sugar Grove Baby Girl Is Killed by Automobile

SUGAR GROVE—The life of a 14-month-old girl ended abruptly yesterday afternoon after she was struck by a car in front of her home. Cathy Louise Hale, daughter of Ellsworth and Clarice Hale, RD 2 Sugar Grove, died at 2:35 p.m. yesterday in the Jamestown General Hospital just 35 minutes after the tragic mishap.

THE CHILD was admitted to the hospital at 2:30 p.m. and was pronounced dead by Dr. Robert Wright, a Jamestown (N. Y.) neurosurgeon. Chautauque County Coroner Frederick Hitchcock, issued a certificate of accidental death. According to the attending physician the small victim suffered a fractured skull.

State Trooper Richard L. DeSimone of the Warren substation said the tot was standing along the side of Route 69 about 2 p.m. when she darted into the path of a car driven by J. Paul Ludwick, 76, of 522 Walnut St., Titusville. Ludwick, police stated, was unable to avoid hitting the child.

TROOPER DeSimone told The Times-Mirror that the parents were home when the accident occurred but did not witness the tragedy. The mother was working in the kitchen and the father on the farm when little Cathy apparently wandered out the door and down the road, police said.

Yesterday's accident was the ninth fatality to occur on Warren County highways this year.

The child was born in Warren General Hospital on July 4, 1963, and was one of those who rode in the special "birthday car" in this year's Jaycee Fourth of July parade.

SURVIVING besides her parents, Ellsworth and Clarice Hale, are three sisters and two brothers. Mrs. Darrell Brooker, Warren; Gary Hale, with the U. S. Navy off the African Coast; Carol, Rebecca and Mark, at home; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Clarence Hutley.

VOTING BOOTH AT SIDEWALK FESTIVAL—Linda Elliott, center, 805 Pleasant Dr., who will vote for the first time this November, received instructions this morning in casting a ballot by machine from Mrs. Lee M. Schaeffer, right, chairman of the voters service committee, League of Women Voters. Pictured with them is Mrs. John Hagerty. Despite the rainy weather, a good crowd was on hand for the start of the Sidewalk Festival, a two-day promotion staged by local merchants.

Area News Roundup

Titusville Industrial Fund Seeking $250,000 To Aid Community Project

TITUSVILLE — A drive by the Titusville Industrial Fund to raise $250,000 during the first three weeks of October to maintain a community industrial project has been announced by John S. Haskell, head of the fund.

"The campaign will offer local residents the opportunity to help themselves and the city," he said, "and assure the continued operation of Titusville Crankshaft and Machine Co."

The $250,000 will result in a total of $2,200,000 working capital which will make possible 250 to 300 more jobs in the area and the potential for even more employment.

Engineer Named

TITUSVILLE — Grandin E. Drake of Townville has been appointed Titusville City Engineer by action of council.

Drake replaces George Atkin Jr., who resigned the post effective Aug. 17.

Project Shelved

NORTH EAST — The proposed $175,000 state highways department program to improve Grahamville St. has been temporarily shelved.

In a letter to borough council, the department said that this project has been deferred "until such time as federal funds are again available for projects of this nature."

219 Tour Set

HARRISBURG — State Highways Secretary Henry D. Haral will make a tour of Route 219 from Bradford to Johnstown Sept. 15 to talk with local officials on projected improvements for the highway.

An agency spokesman said Haral wants to learn the desires of the public in connection with the improvements so he can decide "how the department can best serve the people."

TV Pact Okayed

ERIE — Council has agreed to grant a franchise for a Community Antenna Television System which would provide subscribers with as many as nine channels of viewing.

Representatives of three companies seeking the franchise decision on awarding the franchise will be made next week.

Youth Member Orientation Set by YMCA on Sept. 28

Orientation for all youth members of the Warren Young Men's Christian Association will be held at the YMCA building starting Monday, Sept. 28.

According to a decision made at a meeting of the Membership Committee last night at the Y, Gerald Huber stated that the committee was conducting this series of orientation periods in order that the Y might make membership more meaningful.

ALL PARENTS of youth members are invited to a meeting at which time new policies and programs will be explained. All youth must be accompanied by at least one parent.

It is most imperative this year that such a period be provided because of use of the newly renovated building, also at this time those attending will get a "Sneak Preview" of the new facilities, Huber said. Formal open house is expected to be about Nov. 1.

HUBER STATED that the orientation periods would be sponsored by the Membership Committee assisted by the Youth Work Committee, Robert Newman, Chairman, Physical Education Committee, N. K. Wendelboe, Jr., Chairman, World Service Committee, Hugh Mohney, Chairman and the YMCA Staff.

The schedule of briefing sessions and sneak preview is as follows, Monday, Sept. 28, those living east of Conewango Ave.; Tuesday, Sept. 29, those living west of Conewango Ave.; Wednesday, Sept. 30, those living in Pleasant Twp and North Warren; Thursday, Oct. 1, those living in Sheffield, Youngville, Starbuck, Sugar Grove, Russell and others outside of Warren Borough.

LETTERS of invitation are being sent to parents. Each family having a membership may bring one additional family as a guest. All of those attending are asked to register at the Y in order that the committee on arrangements can plan accordingly.

The Membership Committee at its meeting asked Gerald Huber to serve as its 1964 Enrollment Week Chairman.

The next meeting of the committee will be Oct. 8.

Other members of the membership committee are John Donaldson, Robert Haslet, Mrs. Dorothy Landers, Richard McClement, Daniel Morse, Mrs. Mary Pierce and David Winans.

Channel Chatter

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Cummings is a television star of considerable distinction.

He has survived, with no visible scars, involvement in three situation comedy series and has now embarked on his fourth. He is also one of a finite group of actors who permits the inclusion of his birth year (1910) in his official biography — and whose extraordinarily youthful appearance permits him to be cast as a youthful, susceptible bachelor.

Cummings this season emerges as a bachelor psychiatrist who accidentally becomes the uncomfortable custodian of a gorgeous robot named Rhoda whose plastic exterior and computer-innards were made for space experiments. The CBS series is called "My Living Doll," and the actor seems fascinated more by the problems facing his co-star, Julie Newmar, than by his own part.

Miss Newmar, the robot, was playing a scene in which she is flirting brazenly with a male visitor because her computer has inadvertently been "programmed" with some romance magazines.

"This is probably the most difficult role ever played by an actress," Cummings commented as we watched. "The character — if that's what you call it — she plays has no thoughts, no emotions, no desires, no ethics, no social conscience. It is very difficult because she cannot instigate anything and she cannot feel anything. She must divorce herself completely from her ego — which is the hardest thing in the world to do."

19 with an innovation — a hostess. Debbie Reynolds will be the first woman to handle the introductions of the acts.

Saturday — Olympic Games trials, ABC, 9:30-10:30 p.m. (Eastern Daylight Time); "Miss America Pageant," CBS, 10 to conclusion, finals, live from Atlantic City.

Sunday — "Wide World of Entertainment," ABC, 9-10 p.m., variety special with Bing Crosby as host, kicking off the network's new season; "The Rogues," NBC, 10-11, premiere program of new comedy-adventure series starring Charles Boyer, David Niven and Gig Young.

Pep Assembly Held at WAHS

Students at Warren Area High School sent their spirits surging at a pep assembly in the gym today. Cheerleaders, majorettes and color girls appeared at the rally which was a preliminary to Saturday's football game against Corry on War Memorial Field.

Posters will be placed soon for the September Shindig, according to Patty Hyatt, who is working on publicity for the affair. All organizations in the school are participating in the carnival, which is being organized for Sept. 18 and 19, and are giving part of their profit to the senior class. The Shindig is a money-raising scheme to benefit Senior Week next May.

On Sept. 19, there will be a dance in honor of the two exchange students, Yoko Horie and Anna Oskarsdattir. The school orchestra, which is made up of about 25 students and plays Glenn Miller-type music, will be on hand for the occasion. Profits from this will also go to the senior class.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am married. He is married. Through working together we fell in love. Or—I did. It's the same old story. I was old enough to know what I was doing and so was he. Before long, the mutual attraction became stronger than we could control. He convinced me that we could share our love without hurting our families. For a while I never knew such happiness could be had on earth. Suddenly he cast me aside as nonchalantly as you would a banana peel. He told me that I was immoral and unworthy to be called a wife and mother, and that I should change my way of living, etc., etc. I had never succumbed to a man's charms before, and I never will again. But maybe if you publish this it might prevent some other woman from making the same mistake. Thank you for letting me unburden to you. There is no one else I could tell.

A DEVOTED FAN

DEAR FAN: Sadly enough, my publishing your letter probably will not jolt one woman who is having an affair. (They're jolt-proof). But it may cushion the shock when it finally comes—as it always does.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of a sister who tells everyone she has no sisters or brothers—that they are all dead? She also tells people that her parents are dead. The truth is she has a living mother and she also has three sisters and two brothers who are living. The ironic part of this whole situation is that she is the one everyone in the family did the most for. Why is that the one you do everything for always hurts you the most?

SNUBBED

DEAR SNUBBED: Some people never forgive you for what you do for them because they can't bear the burden of indebtedness. It's easier for your sister to bury the whole family with one sentence than to acknowledge their help.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who lives at the other end of town so we don't get to see each other as often as we'd like, but we talk on the phone almost every day. When I call her I always ask if she's busy and she says no. But she is forever running to watch something she has on the stove, or else she is trying to keep an eye on the children while talking to me. This just about drives me crazy. Should I tell her that those interruptions bother me? I don't want to hurt her feelings.

TELEPHONE FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Why not ask your friend to call YOU when she is able to converse without interruption?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WILLIAM IN BALTIMORE:" He who desires to achieve success must not be afraid of criticism; for fear of criticism is the kiss of death in the courtship of achievement.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk

Members of the Warren Kiwanis Club heard a talk yesterday at their noon luncheon meeting at the Blue Manor by William Porter, state YMCA executive, on "The Rise and Fall of the Circus."

PORTER outlined the history of the traveling tent circus, stating that prior to 1870 most acts of entertainment were performed in vaudeville. In 1870 P. T. Barnum, who had retired as proprietor of a museum after having made several fortunes, agreed to the use of his name and became a partner in the P. T. Barnum Great London Circus.

He then explained how and why circuses began to travel by rail and traced the history of the smaller circuses up to the formation of the Barnum and Bailey Circus which was known as "The Greatest Show on Earth."

AFTER THE death of Bailey, with Barnum having died several years prior to that time, Ringling Brothers bought out the Barnum and Bailey show. The Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey show then became the largest in the world, needing 90 to 108 railroad cars to transport its equipment. The 600 by 250 foot tent could hold 12,000 people and boasted three rings and four stages.

By 1939 Ringling Brothers remained the only railroad circus in existence, and in 1956 it announced that it was discontinuing travel by road and would henceforth play only in auditoriums.

PORTER also showed slides of the Ringling Brothers Circus and participated in a question and answer period.

Announcement was made of the forthcoming service club golf tournament to be held at Blueberry Hill Sept. 16.

SIDEWALK Festival Days this year will find Kiwanians not only selling their usual peanut brittle but also manning a hot dog stand. Work schedules for the Friday and Saturday Festival Days were circulated through members yesterday. All Kiwanians not in attendance are asked to call William Schreckengost at 723-3100 so that their work schedules can be arranged.

Guests at yesterday's meeting included Don Summer, district forester, State Department of Forests and Waters, and James Nagle, Jamestown Kiwanian.

WHO WON?

DENVER (AP) — A Spokane-Denver baseball game in the Pacific Coast League was interrupted for an unusual reason. The wooden fence at the east end of the grandstand caught fire and the flames shorted the electric system, throwing the park into darkness. The game was finished the next day — in the daylight.

Tshombe Fails in Boast To Show World New Congo in Three Months

By LYNN HEINZERLING
LONDON (AP) — Moise Tshombe is not going to make his deadline for showing the world a new Congo in three months.

The flamboyant, fast-talking secessionist leader from Katanga took office as premier in Leopoldville July 10 with the brash promise to reform Africa's problem child.

With one month to go, Tshombe and the world are still faced with the same old Congo — sullen, rebellious and dangerous.

Tshombe has added one new and refreshing ingredient to the Congolese stew, a political leader who is constantly on the move and who acts. His stated objectives for the Congo — national reconciliation, prosperity and peace — are beyond reproach.

The Congolese central government has not seen a leader with his energy and dash since the unhappy days of the late Premier Patrice Lumumba.

But Tshombe is being defeated by the same enemies that have frustrated the Congo's leaders from the beginning of independence four years ago — tribal hatreds, political immaturity, corruption and apathy.

With or without the assistance of the Organization of African Unity, these are formidable foes. Most of Africa's leaders are fighting the same enemies at home with varying success.

Tshombe, now dedicated to a unified Congo, is at present facing rebellions in Kwilu, North Katanga, Kivu and Oriental provinces. Stanleyville, one of the country's most important cities, is in rebel hands.

Red Chinese diplomats and agents openly are supporting the rebels with money and advice on guerrilla tactics. They have been operating through rebel headquarters established in Brazzaville and Bujumbura with the complicit assent of the Congo's neighbors, the Congo Republic and Burundi.

African nationalist leaders have criticized the United States for supporting Tshombe's central government after opposing him when he was trying to take Katanga out of the Congo. A small number of U.S. transport planes and trucks have been placed at the disposal of the Congolese national army.

Washington says there has been no reversal of U.S. policy in the Congo. From the first day of independence, Washington has worked and spent its money for a united Congo, strong and prosperous enough to fill a strategic area in the heart of Africa.

What is going on in the Congolese provinces is not war in the accepted sense. It is a kind of intertribal mayhem which has been practiced in the Congo for centuries.

It has a particularly menacing significance now because it is being deliberately provoked by political dissidents supported by Chinese Communists.

The real losers are the patient and backward people of the Congo. They have been waiting four years for the bloodshed to cease and the independent Congo to produce the prosperity and peace promised by their leaders.

Senecas Will Host Indian Commissioner

SALAMANCA, N. Y. — Seneca Indians are planning special ceremonies Sept. 19 when Philo Nash, U. S. commissioner of Indian affairs, is scheduled to be a guest of the Seneca Council at a special meeting in the courthouse on the Allegany reservation.

PLANS are being made for a public meeting in the afternoon with Seneca Indian adoption of Nash; Arthur Lazarus Jr. of Washington, Seneca Nation attorney; and Lucian C. Warren, Washington news correspondent, if he is able to be present on that day.

It is expected that the afternoon meeting of the council will be moved outdoors in the vicinity of the courthouse if the weather is good and that it will be held in Jimersontown Presbyterian Church annex in case of rain.

IT IS expected that the council, at its morning meeting will name the nine members of a Seneca scholarship foundation authorized this month.

Five commissioners will be named to administer the $1.8 million fund authorized to be established by the council with money included in rehabilitation funds approved by Congress in connection with reparations for taking land for the Kinzua dam project.

FIVE OF the commissioners will be Senecas, with the probability that at least some of them will be members of the committee which has been working on scholarship educational plans. This committee is headed by Mrs. Maribel Printup.

Four other members of the commission will be non-Senecas. It is expected that two of these will be top officials of the Salamanca and Gowanda school systems.

GEORGE Heron, Seneca Nation president, said he plans to confer with Pennsylvania Gas Co. officials in the near future regarding service for the Steamburg relocation area. If there is a probability that gas service will be provided soon, he said, it is expected that the first families to move into the area may decide to use bottled gas until natural gas lines are installed.

Heron reported also that land has been cleared in the Bunker Hill Rd. vicinity for Hillside Haven Cemetery where about 3,000 graves will be relocated. Grading and construction of roads remains to be done there. The other Seneca Nation cemetery, Memorial Heights, will be situated in the Breed Run Rd. vicinity, west of Jimersontown. More than 2,000 graves are to be moved there.

THE LADY AND THE SHOVEL — Mrs. Mary Lynn Totten of Tulsa, Okla., dressed much like any young housewife — except for the steel hat she's holding — takes a break from work on the big power shovel she operates for her husband. "And she's a darned good operator, too," says Isco Totten, owner of the General Fabricating and Welding Co. Mother of four, Mrs. Totten has been running the shovel since March. She says she does it for fun and profit and finds it's as easy as driving a car.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

(Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.)

FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 12

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Synchronize activities to coincide with needs of the day. More than the usual reward is promised for constructive endeavors. Benefactors are waiting to assist you.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Venus, favorably aspected, especially encourages artistic aspirations, original ideas, domestic affairs and new friendships.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Observe the tactics of others. Some you should not follow, of course; others you could adopt — and profitably. Don't sell any new idea short, and do look for new opportunities which may not be obvious on the surface.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Yesterday's planetary restrictions lift now, and you should have a really good day. Especially favored, actors, writers, musicians, designers, all those involved in dealings with the public.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Both your endurance and serenity of disposition are still being tested. But take heart. In a couple of days the adverse stellar influences which have governed your life for the past few days will lift, and you can go full steam ahead. In the meantime, be a good listener. You could pick up a gem of an idea.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Getting behind in chores, keeping promises? Perhaps you have over-committed yourself. There are always ways to retreat, and people will understand if you talk things over promptly, frankly.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Venus in fine configuration. Get out your bag of tricks and launch your pet projects now — especially those having to do with artistic interests and family affairs.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 23 (Scorpio) — While you haven't too much planetary help now, you can, nevertheless, keep this day out of the mediocre class if you emphasize your innate enthusiasm and good cheer. Some good news should also prove enlivening.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — You can achieve great satisfaction by completing a well-done job, starting someone else off with an assist toward cherished goals. Emphasize stability, consistency. And do beware those who would take advantage of your generosity.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 19 (Capricorn) — A good period for improving on current projects as well as launching new ones. Your integrity, sense of balance and perseverance, even in the "rougher" moments, will lead to success.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Carry on with matters already planned and launched, and don't delay your progress by going off on tangents periodically. You may have a tendency toward restlessness now, but try to curb it.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Your modesty and unassuming manner usually stand you in good stead, but this may be a day when you will have to speak up firmly — especially in support of worthwhile causes. Don't hesitate. Your known trustworthiness will make others listen.

YOU BORN TODAY are, innately, a reasoner, a philosopher; are adaptable to almost any environment as long as it is above the mediocre.

Planning Is a Must

ONE POINT must not be lost sight of in the discussion of Warren County's Planning Commission: Commissioner Blain M. Mead did not advocate an end to planning in Warren County. He suggested that the present commission be dissolved and that in the period between Oct. 1 and Jan. 1, 1965, the commissioners do a thorough re-study of the county's planning needs.

Mr. Mead's reasons for this were detailed in his original statement and repeated in this space during the past week. Briefly, he pointed out that a reassessment of planning is needed because:

1. The commission, in a period of four years, has made no apparent progress and achieved few results.
2. The cost is out of line with the few results achieved.
3. No effort has been made to enforce the subdivision ordinance—the one piece of legislation which the county planners passed during their four years in office.
4. The commission has not explained why it was necessary to hire an outside consultant planner, at a pay rate of $12.50 per hour, in addition to the professional planning director already on the payroll.

He added that the commission appears to be run by one or two men and that "the rest don't know what's going on." This would seem to be the case. It would appear that those who are "running the commission" were those who attended the recent secret meeting in which it was decided to ask Robert Skinner, incumbent professional planner, for his resignation.

BUT THE MEAT of Mr. Mead's statement is this: That the commission has gotten out of hand. It has. We find it very interesting that not one member of the commission, from the chairman on down, has bothered to take the opportunity of either defending or explaining the planning situation in the week since Mr. Mead made his recommendations to his colleagues. Why not? Is it perhaps because there is no defense and that Mr. Mead is right? We are beginning to believe so.

Now it goes without saying that this county, like every area in the United States today, would benefit from planning. It is a necessity. Especially with the Kinzua Dam in our back yard, is it needed. One point which has been sadly confused in the discussion of planning is the role of zoning. Zoning is the first step in planning. However, it should be pointed out that Warren Borough had zoning long before it had planning. The zoning ordinance, now up for revision, was adopted in 1951—13 years ago.

But to return to the county-wide picture: We have dropped the ball where planning for the Kinzua Dam is concerned. Lewis Crippen says that the Planning Commission has made the dam known "nation-wide." This may be the case, but we've no evidence of it. Most folks outside this area don't even know how to pronounce Kinzua properly, let alone know what it is and where it is. As it stands now, the U. S. Forest Service is going to do the bulk of the planning and developing around the dam, and McKean County, which was on the ball, will reap much of the benefits as the eastern gateway to the dam area. North of us, at least two major recreation projects are being planned in Chautauqua County. All of this is fringe-area development which should have begun here the day the first spadeful of earth was turned at the dam-site.

As Mr. Mead said, we need planning, but of our present planning commission, we need a thorough review and a housecleaning. With the professional planner soon to be forced out of his job, now is the ideal time for a moratorium and a restudy of the county's needs.

If it is not done now, it will never be. It must be done now.

We cannot do without planning, but we must have a thorough restudy of what the current planning commission has accomplished—and what it has not. We cannot afford another cover-up like the one engineered at the Rouse Home over the dairy herd.

We hope that at least one of the two other commissioners will reverse himself, having reflected in the fullness of his wisdom, and will support Mr. Mead in a new bid for a restudy of planning here.

Editorial Viewpoints Of Other Leading Area Newspapers

criminals isn't the magnificent success which the soft-hearts and the sob-sisters claim.

For the first time this year, the FBI's annual crime report included a study of the records of criminals. More than 50,000 cases "actively handled" last year were reviewed.

Three out of four of these crimes were committed by criminals with more than one previous arrest on their records. In fact, the average was 4.5 arrests.

More than half of these repeaters had received "leniency" (the study's term for probation, suspended sentence, parole or conditional release). A third of these had received it more than once.

Still further:
—The average man or woman arrested for murder or serious assault had a criminal record going back 13 years, with an average of eight arrests.

—The average man or woman arrested for robbery also had an average criminal career of 13 years, with nine arrests.

—Of those arrested for serious crimes, most were granted leniency at one time or another, then had an average of five to six arrests after leniency was granted.

The figures cited are the results only of preliminary studies. Perhaps the final analysis will give even more evidence that our present methods of "reforming" criminals need serious re-examination.

In the meantime, there is already adequate documentation for our State Parole Board to immediately curb its eagerness to turn sex criminals loose upon the public.

You're Telling Me!

—By William Ritt—

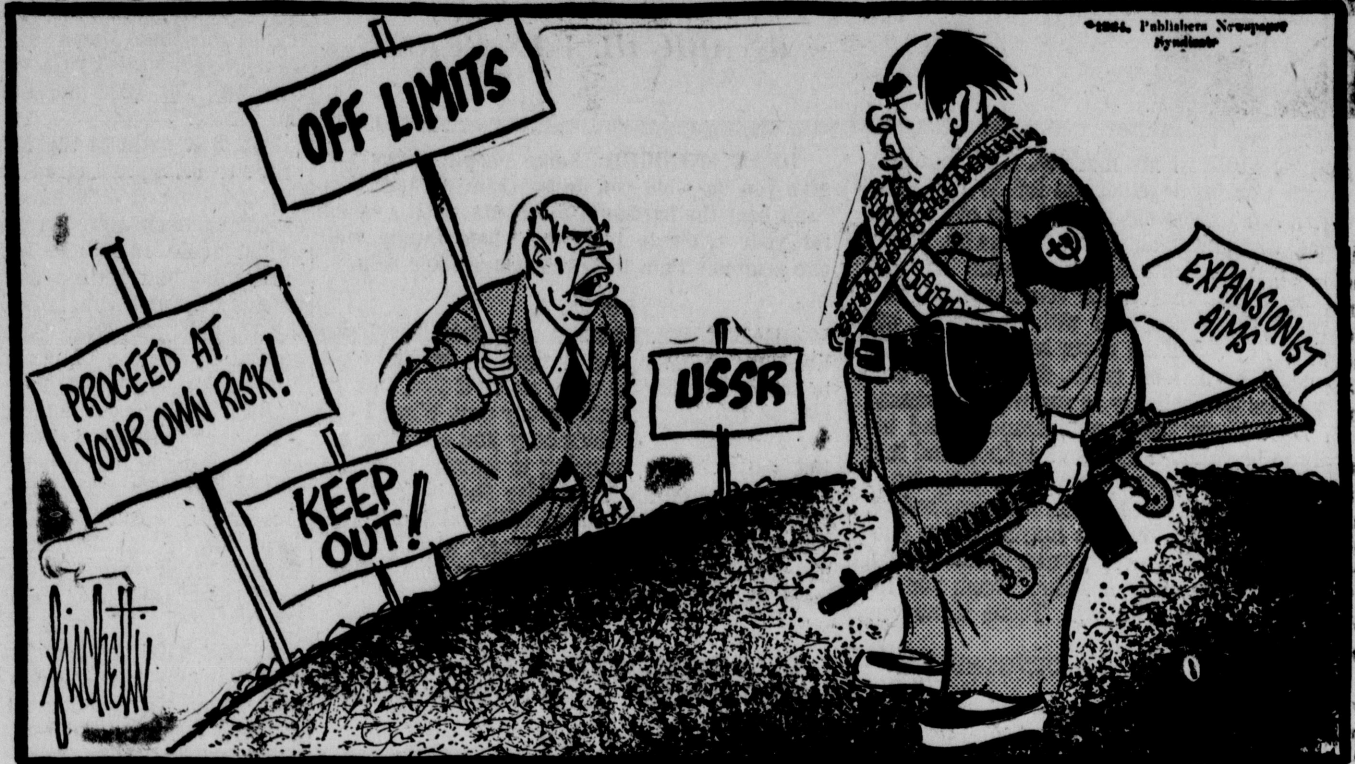

The survey says four out of every ten British wives would make a different choice if they had a chance. Apparently the British are mis-mated.

Surveyist Brill says 95 per cent of marriages range from "relatively happy to miserable." And sometimes back again.

"The wife who expects her husband to be a pillar of reliability, steadiness and patience, as well as an impulsive, fun-loving Don Juan is going to be disappointed," says Brill. He probably doesn't mean your wife, however.

Drew Pearson: Washington Merry-Go-Round

Goldwater's Peace Plea

WASHINGTON — Barry Goldwater's stable of handlers felt better after his kick-off speech at Prescott, Ariz. They were confident it helped remove the impression that Barry would be a trigger-happy President.

The speech was very carefully prepared to remove that jinx. It was no accident that Barry pushed peace. While his speech was peppered with the usual resounding phrases, "grave danger," "free and unafraid," "noble cause," and while he mentioned the words "free" or "freedom" 12 times, he pushed peace with 18 different mentions. And he punched it home with such repetition as "we are preoccupied with peace" . . . "We are fearful this administration is letting the peace slip away" . . . "The Republican Party is the peace party. We are the peace party because" . . . "I do not intend to be a wartime President." . . . "We seek peace for everyone" . . . "I promise an administration that will keep the peace."

Repetition is the most tried and trusted technique of the advertising experts on Madison Avenue. Barry took their advice and used it to the hilt.

However, there are two problems the Goldwater speech writers can't get away from and which worry them continually. One is the fact that their candidate has made so many contradictory statements in the past. The other is that his statements so often conflict with Eisenhower's—and it's the Ike moderates whom Goldwater is trying to win back into his camp.

Already three Eisenhower Cabinet members have deserted to Johnson: Oveta Culp Hobby, the Houston publisher; Frank Folsom of Eastman Kodak; and James Mitchell, former Secretary of Labor.

Barry's kickoff speech isn't going to make things any better, as far as the Eisenhower moderates are concerned. For his speech writers forgot, first, what Eisenhower had said about the draft; second, what Goldwater himself had said.

When Adlai Stevenson, in the 1956 campaign, proposed ending the draft, here is how the New York Times, Sept. 18, reported Goldwater's reaction:

"If I were Adlai Stevenson, I'd take that platform and tear it up," the Senator declared. He noted that Mr. Stevenson had called for an adequate defense, but would end the draft. Yet, he added, 70 per cent of recruits in the hands of the Strategic Air Command drop out at the end of their first term."

Two days later, Sept. 20, Eisenhower came out strongly supporting the draft:

"We cannot prove wise and strong by hinting that our military draft might soon be suspended, even though every family naturally hopes for the day when it might be possible. This, I state categorically, cannot be done under world conditions today."

"We cannot, in short, face the future simply by walking into the past backwards. We cannot salute the future with bold words, while we surrender it with feeble deeds."

Eisenhower repeated this, time after time, during the course of his administration. On Oct. 6, 1956, he stated: "For an armed force in excess of 1,500,000 men, experience shows that selective service is indispensable."

This is why some of Goldwater's handlers are still worried about their candidate's making speeches without checking both on what he has said in the past and on the more important policies of the Eisenhower administration.

CORRECTION—This column was in error in reporting that members of the Costa Rican president's party registered a formal complaint about Fascist conversation while being entertained at the King Ranch in Texas. Some of the Costa Ricans complained informally to State Department officials, but not formally. It was outside Texas guests who indulged in the right-wing conversation, not members of the Kleberg family, who own the ranch. The Klebergs were the height of cordiality, did not engage in political intolerance.

Jackson Leichter, N.Y.C. — The facts are irrefutable that Sen. Goldwater has been a contributor of the NAACP, also to the Urban League. He does not deny this. For some years Goldwater has contributed $3 a year to the Urban League in Phoenix, Ariz., but this year he upped the contribution to $50. Goldwater's contribution to the NAACP began shortly after he announced for the Senate on Oct. 1, 1951, when he gave $400 to a special legal fee fund to test segregation laws in Phoenix. A campaign was then on to integrate Phoenix high schools. In 1955 Goldwater paid a $10 fee to join the Tucson Chapter of NAACP.

President Johnson wrapped a big arm around his running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, during their recent week-end at the LBJ ranch. Johnson said few Presidents had ever been able to get along with their Vice Presidents. "But with Hubert," said the President, "it will be different." . . . LBJ and HHH have discussed plans for several overseas trips next year if they're elected. Johnson said he would like to visit Europe and Latin America by himself, and would probably send Humphrey to Africa and Asia . . . Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the lady from Maine, has told friends that she doesn't intend to campaign much for Sen. Goldwater. She still is irked because Goldwater's followers called her people "communists" during the Illinois primary.

John Chamberlain: These Days

Communist Contradictions

Karl Radek, who was perhaps the last gay Communist publicist, once jocularly observed to a western sympathizer that "there must be something to Karl Marx, for the Soviet Union is still here." This was said after the western nations had lamentably failed in the post-World War I efforts to nip the Communist Revolution before it had managed to consolidate itself.

If Radek were alive today he might boast that Communism is still very much alive. Yet perhaps the time has come to turn Radek around. After the events of September, 1964, one can say that there must be something to democracy, for the western nations are still here.

It's not that the United States, which ought to be the fearless leader of an anti-Communist coalition, has done anything remarkable to discommodate the Communists. As I write, four Soviet ships—the Kovaliesky, the Lomonosov, the Xiphias and the Delfin—are undertaking to map the waters of the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico, paying special attention to currents and temperatures that might affect the development of a Soviet submarine potential in Cuba. Submarine pens are being constructed in Cayo Fragoso, which is off the north coast of Las Villas province in Cuba.

But even while Khrushchev and Castro combine to tweak the beard of Uncle Sam, Communism has failed in its bid to take over Chile, where Salvador Allende was beaten by the Christian Democrat Eduardo Frei. As they did in Brazil, the Catholic women sparked an anti-Communist crusade in Chile. True enough, Eduardo Frei has some radical ideas of his own, but they will not impede the continued growth of a creative middle class in Chile. And the American copper companies, Anaconda and Kennecott, will keep their Chilean mining properties which contribute 87 per cent of their profits to the Chilean treasury.

On the same day in which Khrushchev was compelled to swallow a bitter South American pill, the Italian Communist Party released the text of a memorandum written by its recently deceased leader, Palmiro Togliatti. The memorandum criticized Khrushchev for calling a world conference of Communist parties to settle the hash of the rambunctious Chinese Reds. In an introduction to the memorandum, Luigi Longo, the new head of the Italian Communists, paid tribute to the "vigorous and lucid" reasoning in Togliatti's testament. And Longo added: "Nothing presages the coming of the atrocious illness that prevented Comrade Togliatti from looking through once again, as he had intended, his memorandum."

Being a suspicious soul, this columnist was struck by Longo's description of Togliatti's illness as "atrocious." What did he mean by this? Togliatti died while on a trip to the Soviet Union. Maybe there is nothing strange in that. But, if you stop to think of it, other Communist leaders have gone to Russia to die. The Bulgarian Communist Georgi Dimitroff, whose Balkan policies were being questioned by Stalin, died in the Soviet Union in 1949 under equivocal circumstances. Poland's Boleslaw Bierut died in Moscow in 1956. France's Maurice Thorez reached his end on a ship in the Black Sea a couple of months ago. And Czechoslovakia's Klement Gottwald caught a mortal sickness while attending Stalin's funeral.

All of this may be sheer coincidence. But why did Longo use the word "atrocious?" An atrocity is something committed by one human being upon the person of another.

Whether Luigi Longo was hinting at anything or not, the fact remains that unity even among western Communists is disappearing. The Togliatti memorandum insists that every Communist Party must "know how to act in an autonomous manner." Said Togliatti: "We would be against any proposal to create once again a centralized international organization." So good-bye to any fifth or sixth international.

Yesterday it was capitalism that was supposed to be perishing of its inner contradictions. Today the contradictions are fissuring the Communist movement. With opportunity knocking at its doors, is the United States too 'fraidly cat to give the tottering Communists a push here and a push there? Beginning with Castro in the Caribbean?

Hollywood's Not 'Finished'

(Dorothy Kilgallen is on vacation. Her guest columnist today is actor, Omar Sharif.)

By OMAR SHARIF

There is an American song entitled "You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You." The same can be said for a movie actor born and working in any country in the world. Until Hollywood touches you and says, "you've made it," the full dream of success has not come true. Hollywood sets the standards for motion pictures throughout the world, and I am frank in admitting that something was missing for me until I felt that Hollywood touch.

I had made 21 films in my native Egypt and two in France. I had my own production company and by any standard in my country, I was a successful young actor. Yet, just one Hollywood production, "Lawrence of Arabia," did more for my career than anything else. Its success and critical acclaim made me internationally known and when I was nominated for an Academy Award—the dream of every single actor in the world—I soon learned just how special was the Hollywood touch.

After my nomination, I received offers from almost every Hollywood company. To say I was flattered was an understatement. I was stunned. And I soon found out that being known and recognized in Hollywood means a similar recognition in major cities throughout the world. Frankly, I wasn't prepared for such reaction and even today I confess that I'm more than a little overwhelmed.

Regardless of what you read about Hollywood's influence waning, I don't believe it's true. Movies were born there and raised to an art that no other country can hope to imitate. Other nations and non-American film makers may be reluctant to acknowledge the debt they owe to Hollywood, but nevertheless, that debt exists.

Today, as they have always been, American films are the most popularly enjoyed throughout the world. It follows that performers in U. S. films are the hierarchy among actors anywhere. The public knows what it likes and its love of American movies is one of the more stable love matches on record.

To be accepted by Hollywood doesn't mean an actor must work there, although that is a pleasure I'm looking forward to. "Lawrence of Arabia" was filmed on location in Jordan. I recently completed a co-starring role in "Behold a Pale Horse," opposite Gregory Peck and Anthony Quinn, made in southern France. I'm currently finishing a co-starring role opposite Ingrid Bergman, Rex Harrison and Shirley MacLaine in "The Yellow Rolls Royce," on location in England and Italy. Hollywood makes movies all over the globe, but no matter what the background scenery, the Hollywood touch is unmistakable.

To me, the Hollywood touch means working with the most professional and expert group of film makers in the world. From producer to crew members, you're working with the best and you must be at your best.

Writers and directors all over the world want to work on American productions. They make more money and they know the movie will be seen by many, many people.

Regardless of how individualistic a moviemaker feels he is, Hollywood remains his chief source of inspiration.

Keeping Well . . .

INFECTIONS of the urinary passageway seldom develop spontaneously; they usually follow a respiratory disorder such as a common cold or a strep throat. In others, bacteria spread from a nearby source such as the rectum or prostate gland. Obstruction of the urinary passageway by a stricture or a kidney stone must be considered.

When the bladder becomes infected, the ensuing inflammation leads to burning and frequency along with a vague sense of discomfort in the lower abdomen. If pyelonephritis is present there is dull aching over the involved kidney, together with chills and fever. Now and then abdominal pain is present.

Urinary tract infections may last a few days and then subside or persist in mild but stubborn form. The majority respond to penicillin or one of the sulfonamides; both may be administered simultaneously. The urine is tested at frequent intervals to determine whether the condition is responding to medications.

When prompt treatment is not necessary, tests are made to determine the causative organism and its sensitivity to different antibacterial agents. In this way the right medicine can be pitted against the culprit.

If infection persists or recurs despite a medication that laboratory tests indicate should be effective, further investigation of the urinary tract is needed, especially in children. Obstruction by a kidney stone is one possibility.

Visible blood in the urine should be considered a warning signal even though it disappears suddenly. In this respect the blood should never be "treated." It may mean anything from Bright's disease to tumor of the bladder or kidneys.

C. E. B. writes: After X-rays, my doctor told me I have mics in my coccyx. Have you any suggestions for relief?

REPLY—I assume he referred to little pieces of bone (joint mice) that may or may not have broken off from the tailbone. You muffed it by not asking your physician what to do when he made the diagnosis. Time, heat, and massage usually take care of pain in this area. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on coccygodynia.

Mrs. R. writes: My son is recovering from mononucleosis. He is planning on entering college in September. He is an honor student and works hard to keep up his grades. If he loses sleep studying, is he likely to have a relapse?

REPLY—No, and he should be able to resume his studies after full recovery.

J. D. writes: Every so often, while walking, my right knee gives way. Is this a form of arthritis or rheumatism?

REPLY—Your knee behavior may be secondary to the diseases mentioned. But, in most instances, this type of discomfort stems from weakness of the muscles and tissues that lend stability to the knees.

S. S. writes: Is there such a thing as a permanent cure of athlete's foot or does it recur from time to time?

REPLY—It may recur, especially when the victim allows the feet to become warm and sweaty and neglects good foot hygiene, including the use of anti-fungal powders.

Eichmann: How He Met Death

HAIFA, Israel — Tall and slender and silent, the cypresses guard the road curving down out of Jerusalem over the salad bowl valleys and down onto the coastal plain at Ramla, and this was the last pastoral scene to pass the eyes of Adolf Eichmann. After he was convicted, they drove him to the ochre-colored prison at Ramla, and he saw nothing but a small naked electrical bulb in a cell.

The bulb was the only warm thing left to him. He was given 19th Century novels to read, and pencil and paper with which to write. He wrote the long dissertations to himself about himself, but he had no desire to see his wife or family. It was as though, when he was kidnapped in Argentina, that he gave up living at once and continued to breathe only because he didn't know how to stop.

Thousands of letters and postcards came to him. Eichmann, the Nazi transportation officer who signed the bills of lading which sent millions of Jews to death camps, seemed only mildly interested in reading those which had been screened by the Israeli authorities. Many merely said: "Dear Eichmann: Drop dead."

One said: "If you are interested in saving stamps, the two on this envelope are rare." Underneath was a quarter of a razor blade. I sat at lunch talking to Prosecutor Gideon Hausner about the mechanical monster, and we drifted onto the subject of Martin Bormann, number two Nazi.

"Do you think he is dead?" I said. The bald hawk who pecked Eichmann to death over a span of 14 weeks, thought about it. He studied the ceiling of the King David Hotel as though he had never seen it before. "No," he said, after a long time. "No, it's only my opinion, but no."

He said that his staff had researched every relative, every friend and every acquaintance in Eichmann's life and never found anyone with the first name "Martin." Still, among a batch of postcards from South America there was one which said simply: "Eichman: Mut, mut. Martin." (Courage, Courage.)

"We compared it with known specimens of Bormann's handwriting," Dr. Hausner said, "and the result was inconclusive. In some instances, the letters matched exactly. In others, they did not, especially in the signature 'Martin.' Still, I think he is alive."

Eichmann was a model prisoner. Once, six slices of bread were placed beside his dinner plate and he ate all six. The warden came in and said: "If you would like some more . . ." Eichmann blinked behind his glasses. "More? I want less. Usually, you put two slices with dinner." The warden scratched his head. "Then why did you eat all six?" he said.

"Because someone put them there," the prisoner said. His complaints were rare. Once he asked that the prison cook stop putting onions in his food because they had a tendency to get caught in his denture. It had not occurred to Eichmann to push the onions aside.

On another occasion, the prosecutor wanted to show some atrocity films to the court. Under the evidentiary laws of Israel, the prosecution must acquaint the defense with its attack before using the weapon. The prisoner and his amiable attorney, Dr. Servatius, were asked to remain in court one evening to see the films prior to their being shown in open court.

If Eichmann had any objection to any part of the film, he could protest at the secret showing. Each day, just before he appeared in the court, he always patted his thin hair flat, and flicked imaginary dandruff from his jacket. On this particular evening, he showed up in slacks and a shirt without a tie.

The court was empty except for the judges, the prosecutor, the defense, and a couple of reporters. The film went on. Adolf Eichmann watched it with masked interest, and saw the weeping Jews shoved into gas chambers, shoveled into ovens, and shot in open pits. Midway in the showing, he began to scribble on a pad frantically.

Hausner saw it and ordered the film stopped. If the S. S. Colonel had an objection, it must be at this point, and Hausner wanted to be able to go back over it. Eichmann finished his note, and handed it to a military guard, who gave it to Servatius. All it said was: "The prosecutor had no right to bring me here in slacks and an open shirt when he knew that reporters would be present."

On the night he was to be hanged in Ramla prison, Eichmann was given a half bottle of wine. "It will make you feel so-so," said the warden, tilting his hand back and forth. The condemned man nodded. He did not say "thank you." Just a nod. He drank it all.

Then, shortly after midnight, he was led into the big room and up the steps to the scaffold. He looked around, explored God's grace on Germany, and a guard tied his ankles together. Eichmann turned petulantly to the executioner.

"This is most uncomfortable," he said, "having to stand with that cord on my legs. How do you expect me to stand properly?" The guards removed the rope. He stood straight and the trap was sprung.

The cypresses, tall and slender and silent, still guard the road to Jerusalem. They are only trees, but they are alive . .

Driver Schools: One Answer...?

By BETTY RICE

The Warren County Commissioners last Thursday paved the way for a Driver Improvement School to be established here October 1 under the supervision of the county superintendent of schools.

Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd of the Bureau of Traffic Safety has said: "I look forward to the time when there will be enough Driver Improvement Schools in Pennsylvania so that every erring motorist can learn how to drive more responsibly, making the highways safer for himself and every other citizen of the Commonwealth."

Last year 1,830 persons were killed on Pennsylvania highways. The number of injured demanding hospital care cost tens-of-thousands of dollars. The property damage in the U. S. due to automobile accidents exceeds twenty million dollars annually. Each year these statistics continue to grow and become more and more alarming, both in the state and on a national scale.

Pennsylvania is determined to reverse this trend on its own highways. Traffic safety experts long have known that most accidents can be traced to human error — to some mistake due to carelessness or ignorance or to some physical or psychological deficiency of the motorist.

It is also known that an attack upon these negative factors will reduce traffic accidents and save lives and property. But how can ignorance, carelessness, or physical or psychological deficiency be attacked? One way is the Driver Improvement School.

These schools are set up for traffic violators who face license suspensions. But the schools may also be attended by anyone who wants to improve his driving techniques. The purpose of a Driver Improvement School is to help a motorist relearn his driving skills so that accident-causing faults will be reduced or eliminated.

The subjects taught include driver attitude, automobile insurance, the causes and prevention of highway accidents, the motor vehicle code, emergency procedures and traffic enforcement problems. The aim of such studies is to provide information and to reshape driver attitudes—the change attitudes from negative to positive factors in the life-and-death equations of the highways.

Surveys in the few states where Driver Improvement Schools are in operation show that they achieve the intended results. They actually help make better—and therefore safer — motorists. In Pennsylvania, county and state traffic safety specialists have joined forces to back a bill authorizing a Driver Improvement School program.

Act 245, passed by the General Assembly on August 1, 1963, authorizes a city or county to set up a driver improvement school. In a county the school may be established by the county commissioners subject to approval by the judges of the Court of Common Pleas.

Once the school is established, the State Bureau of Traffic Safety will provide the superintendent of schools with a list of motorists residing in the county who face a possible suspension of their license for a summary offense of the Motor Vehicle Code. (Motorists faced with an out-and-out revocation of their license will not be included on the list.)

A violator faced with a suspension will be notified that if he attends the Driver Improvement School, the suspension will be postponed until he completes the course. Successful completion of the course will be taken into account in determining whether to waive the suspension altogether.

Past experience has shown that an efficient course can be operated in four weekly sessions of about two hours each. A State Traffic Safety representative can offer guidance in obtaining the needed literature, films, testing equipment or whatever else is needed. The cost to the county is very low—only a few dollars for each erring motorist who completes the course. The long range results in terms of spared lives and reduced property damage will be immeasurable.

In Warren borough alone from January 1 through the end of August, there have been 212 traffic accidents, 47 persons injured and $78,496.62 in property damage. In the same period of time there have been 8 traffic deaths occur in the county, although none had, as of last Friday, occurred within the borough.

Geisinger Medical Center Grows

[EDITOR'S NOTE: In the span of half century, Geisinger Medical Center has grown from a small community hospital to a vast medical complex that is sometimes likened to a Mayo Clinic of the East. Here's a topical report on the institution written for the Associated Press by Jack Feeley, general manager of the Danville News.]

By JACK FEELEY

DANVILLE, Pa. (AP)—When the Geisinger Medical Center dedicates its new radiation center Sept. 26, it will mark another milestone for an institution that has been growing constantly since opening its doors almost 50 years ago.

Geisinger, located atop a hill overlooking this community of 7,000, is more than a hospital. It is a vast medical complex of concrete, of gifted men and women and elaborate equipment—some of it looking as though borrowed from a fantasy movie—all geared to the treatment and care of the ill.

The center, then known as the George F. Geisinger Memorial Hospital, began in 1915 as a small town institution. It was the dream come true of the late Mrs. Abigail A. Geisinger, who saw it as a fitting and lasting tribute to her husband.

Constructed at a cost of $230,000 and opened prematurely because of a typhoid epidemic, Geisinger had 18 private rooms, 45 ward beds, two doctors, seven nurses, and a lone technician.

Today, it has a full time staff of 56 physicians, 45 residents and interns, and schools of nursing, medical technology, X-ray technology, and anesthesiology. About 1,000 persons in the surrounding region are employed at the medical center, making it a particularly valuable contributor not only to the local economy but to the economy of many towns in the depressed coal regions.

Geisinger, in its early years, devoted itself to the sick of Montour County and Riverside, a community just over the Susquehanna River in Northumberland County.

Today, it serves mainly the 12-county section of Central Pennsylvania making up Montour, Northumberland, Centre, Clinton, Columbia, Juniata, Luzerne, Lycoming, Mifflin, Schuylkill, Snyder, and Union Counties.

It also attracts patients from up and down the east coast and from as far west as Hawaii. Governors, legislators and great men of industry and finance come here for check-ups and for treatment.

Some indication of the growth of the Geisinger Medical Center, a growth which surely would have astounded Mrs. Geisinger, may be seen in statistics.

In 1920, a total of 2,706 persons were admitted to Geisinger or treated as out-patients.

Last year, 144,808 received care of one type or another in the various departments.

Geisinger last year had 13,145 new registrations, its staff performed 12,105 operations, 325,477 laboratory examinations, 45,838 radiological examinations and treatments, 8,277 electrocardiographs, and 6,301 physical therapy treatments.

Statistics, however, tell nothing of the joy of the Danville mother whose child has just had a faulty heart corrected by a physician and a team of able assistants.

They tell nothing of the post operative reaction of the family of the high school teacher rushed here from the western part of Pennsylvania for delicate brain surgery. The teacher, completely cured, goes back to work next month.

Geisinger, in many quarters, has become known as the Mayo Clinic of the east.

If this be so, and there seems little reason to doubt that Geisinger's prestige is heading in the general area of the famed Rochester, Minn., clinic, the responsibility in the main, much rest with two men.

These are Dr. Harold L. Foss, chief-of-staff emeritus, and Dr. Leonard F. Buch, present chief-of-staff.

Dr. Foss, who helped Mrs. Geisinger plan and construct the hospital and then directed it until retiring several years ago, early in his career served as first assistant to one of the Mayo brothers.

Dr. Bush came to Geisinger 30 years ago as a surgeon. After service in World War II, he returned as Dr. Foss' assistant. He took over in 1958, a critical point in the growth of the institution.

Dr. Bush sees the objectives of a medical center such as Geisinger as two-fold.

The New Breed Of Speeches

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's a new breed of speech-writers at work.

Just read the speeches by President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater.

They're not like those in 1960 by Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Johnson has become a one-sentence-to-a-paragraph man, with one idea to a sentence. After each sentence he looks around till the audience digests it.

Take his Labor Day speech in Detroit:

"This is a great day in an historic place.

"Here, and today, we begin to move toward new years of achievement for America.

"Sixteen years ago an American president came here and promised that America would 'enter a new period of hope.'"

"You gave him support and he gave you that hope."

Goldwater goes for short sentences, too, but often bunches them in one paragraph.

He tries to give them a roll, a grandeur, with high-sounding abstract words like peace, freedom.

Here are some from his campaign opener Sept. 3:

"We mean something far different from the opposition party. We mean:

"Peace through preparedness.

"Peace through freedom.

"Purpose through constitutional order.

"These are the themes we shall make resound across this great land of ours, and across an anxious, troubled and listening world."

Kennedy relied on fairly short sentences, but not as terse as Johnson's, and usually packaged them in a paragraph.

Here's Kennedy making a Labor Day speech in Detroit in the 1960 campaign:

"I am taking my case to the American people in the next two months because I believe that the American people should decide which direction this country is going to go. The issue is before you and I am confident that in November you will make a choice for progress, not for standing still."

Kennedy's instinct for clarity and brevity was so good he made up that part of his speech after his prepared speech had been released to the press.

The prepared one wasn't that simple, that quick:

"I am taking my case to the American people because that is where it belongs—because that is where there will be no threat of veto or parliamentary obstruction—and because that is where we can always place our confidence."

Because Nixon lacked Kennedy's sense of composition, he didn't get across as easily as Kennedy, and maybe that's one of the things that hurt him.

His sentences were often too stretched, as one of his first 1960 speeches shows:

"I call upon all the people here, whether you are Republicans or Democrats or independents, to hear what I have to say, to hear me on the issues, and then to make your decision—not on the basis of the party label, even though you happen to be a member of my party—but on the basis of whether you think what I stand for is best for America."

The trouble with Johnson's bang-bang-bang is that he may make people hard of hearing.

And Goldwater may put them to sleep if he keeps playing that peace-liberty-freedom record over and over, as he says he will.

About Cycles Of Weather

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Dr. Charles Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution says weather repeats itself generally nearly every 23 years but that patterns are upset by 8,600 bomb explosions in the atmosphere.

The 92-year-old scientist said in an interview that after patterns have been upset by such things as the Russian nuclear testing of 1959 it takes several years for a return to normal.

Dr. Abbot says the master period for weather is 273 months, just short of 23 years. Within this span, he says there are periods of 4 months to 91 months which also fall into a pattern.

His computations for long range forecasting, the Smithsonian expert said, require 220 tables and take two to three weeks for a specific area depending on prior occurrences.

Dr. Abbot said he has used such factors as the water level in Lake Huron for a long range forecast. He said that about 25 years ago he was able to predict with success a drought in the 1950s, in part because of the Huron water level.

He also predicts droughts in the 1970s, starting about 1975 and lasting 10 years, and an even bigger one in the 2020s.

Dr. Abbot says some of his forecasts have been unexpected, but were proven by time. About a year and a half ago, he said, he sent forecasts to Japan predicting good rainfall. Japan at that time was experiencing drought. A short time later, Dr. Abbot related, he read of rains totaling up to 17 inches in Japan.

And in 1958, he continued, he forecast weather for prospective wedding dates for a couple of Washington area brides. "I told 13 their days would be fair, and told one that on her day it might rain. The day was fair, and the other one was cloudy, but it did not rain."

Ole's Olio . . .

THE ULTIMATE SUFFERER — Under bureaucratic meddling and strangling controls, plus excessive taxation and union demands, businesses still tend to prosper. But, how is it done? Well, every tool of efficiency and automation is brought to bear, and the result is a big reduction in the manpower needed to operate—and in costs. So—in the end—who suffers? (And I have witnessed a manufacturing concern increase its sales by $200 million, yet reduce its forces by several thousand men—in order to survive.)

IT'S A FAD—If Harold E. Stassen hasn't anything to do, he should lose no time in running for Senator in any one of the 50 States that suits his fancy. It's certain that the Democrats can't complain.

CONTEMPORARY FOLK SONG—A most beautiful contemporary folk song, that is heard much of late, is "Where Have All The Flowers Gone?" Listen for it. It should thrill you.

Hammerbeck - Morrison Marriage in Late August

August 29 was the date chosen by Victoria Lynn Hammerbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy E. Hammerbeck of 22 Plum St., for her marriage to Raymond Francis Morrison Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Francis Morrison of 412 Prospect St.

The double ring service was read at 2 p.m. in Grace Methodist Church by the Rev. Ralph S. Findley. White gladioli and yellow Fuji mums, with candelabra and palms fashioned the altar setting. Mrs. Findley was at the piano to provide the wedding music.

PRESENTED in marriage by her father, the bride selected a ballerina-length wedding gown of white delicately-embroidered organza over taffeta. The empire bodice was accented with Venice lace and featured a portrait neckline and short sleeves. Two small back bows secured the twin lace-edged Watteau panels which fell over the graceful princess skirt.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson Eklund will observe open house Sunday in the parlors of Frewsburg, N. Y. EUB Church to mark the couple's silver wedding anniversary. The hours will be from 2 until 6 p.m. and all relatives and friends are invited.

LISTS MEETING

TIDIOUTE—All members and parents are asked to turn out for the organizational meeting of Tidioute Area Joint PTA at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria.

Superintendent of Covenant Conference Scandia Speaker

RUSSELL—The Rev. J. Theodore Johnson of Jamestown, N. Y., superintendent of the Middle East Conference of the Evangelical Covenant Church, was guest speaker for the 34th annual Homecoming observance in Scandia Mission Church on Labor Day.

He used as his theme "Signs on the World's Crossroads," comparing life's journey with a trip on which are signposts to be heeded and followed.

Judy, Bonnie and John Landin of Ashville, N. Y., presented several musical numbers. Earlier, as guests assembled in the church for the service, organ music was provided by Mrs. Earl Abel.

Dr. Fenner Lindbloom, Jamestown, conducted the business session, substituting for President Donald Hagberg. The latter was engaged in barbecuing chickens for the dinner served by women of the church in the dining room and on the lawn immediately following the program. The Rev. Herman Davidson, pastor of the host church, read the Scripture and offered prayer.

Dr. Lindbloom spoke briefly on the work done by the church, the oldest in the Middle East Conference, and told of improvements which have been made to the property.

Mrs. Lothair Swanson read the secretary and treasurer's reports. Mrs. Alice Wall, reporting for the nominating committee, presented a slate which was unanimously accepted:

Ernest Lindell of Russell, president; Kenneth Jespersen of Russell, vice president; Mrs. Joe Rogers of Russell, secretary-treasurer; Ed Nasman of Warren, sports director; John Nordine and Phillip Johnson, directors.

Women of Moose Have Enrollment

New members enrolled were among the large number attending the Chapter Night meeting of Warren Chapter 693, Women of the Moose. Marion Root, regent, conducted the session in the lodge room.

It was reported by the committee a piano has been purchased for the hall. Members voted to send Mrs. Root to the western conference in Pittsburgh September 17-20.

Helen Moore's name was drawn for the attendance prize and the special Chapter Night award was won by Evie Johnson. Lunch was served by the social committee to conclude the evening.

tors for three years. Dr. Lindbloom gave the offertory prayer, the offering being taken by the ushers, Victor Hagberg and William Hallberg, and Penny Abel playing the organ.

Mrs. Anna Eckman of Jamestown, who will be 92 on November 24, was the oldest member of the group attending.

Continuing the roll call, it was shown visitors were present from Brooklyn, Jamestown and Frewsburg, N. Y.; Newark, N. J.; Cleveland and Lakewood, Ohio; Corpus Christi, Texas; Washington, D. C.; Warren and other surrounding communities.

Carl Hallberg, a former resident who is now an attorney in Cleveland, spoke briefly to the group, also.

Dr. Lindbloom reported Mrs. Emma Rose of Scandia, a patient in Jamestown General Hospital, will be 90 on Friday and suggested friends remember her with cards.

The Landin Trio, singing several additional selections, closed with "Memories," and Mr. Davidson pronounced the Benediction.

During the afternoon, a sports program directed by Kenneth Jespersen included contests for the children, water battles between Glade Township and Russell Fire Departments and, at 3 p. m., a horse show staged by Y-Bar-U Saddle Club.

The Russell firemen's new ambulance was on display during the day, with Don Merkle and Claude Perrigo on hand to explain the equipment.

The Ladies Aid of the church, which sponsored a bazaar on the church lawn, served the noon-time dinner and attended a lunch counter during the afternoon. Assisting Don Hagberg with the barbecuing chore were Ernest Sanden, John Nordine and Richard Campbell.

Bethel EUB Inaugurates Fall Planning Meetings

On Sunday morning, Bethel EUB Church will launch its fall planning program for 1965. In the morning service, the Rev. Frank Wood will speak on "Looking Toward the Horizon."

The 7 P.M. service will be led by members of the steering committee, presenting a panel discussion on "The Objectives We Seek." After this presentation, the congregation will be divided into small discussion groups, each directed by a committee member. A nursery will be provided and a program will be given for children through the junior age group.

The work of program planning will continue through the coming week, with the following schedule established: Monday, men of the church; Tuesday, Children's Work Council; Wednesday, women of the church; Thursday, trustees, stewardship and finance committee.

ALL MEETINGS will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be given priority over local organizational sessions. Other groups are asked to check the church calendar for conflicts and make the necessary adjustments. The program planning is designed in order that every member may participate and each is asked by the pastor to do so.

Youth Fellowship will initiate its fall program at 6 p.m. Sunday, with Nancy Laurence leading the program.

ADULT Choir will rehearse at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday; there will be no prayer meeting and Bible study in the coming week. Junior Choir will rehearse at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

This Fruit

... looks like an apple from a good tree. God used this parable to teach an authoritative lesson of truth to some who were calling, "Lord, Lord." He answered, saying, "Not everyone that calls me Lord, shall get to heaven." He spoke plainly and used small words, and said, "Only those who bear good fruit will make it." See this tree loaded with fine fruit! Few of us stop to ponder its history. But every orchard expert knows well every sound tree. The good fruit is detectable from way off. The lesson is clear. Goodness all the way to the core is the kind of fruit God wants. Soundness of heart, purity of mind and integrity of character are essential if one's fruit is to please God. No one gathers grapes from thorns, or figs from thistles. Read the Sermon on the Mount; Meditate on I Corinthians; Hear what He says in Romans 8 and 12. Here one will find soil where good trees may grow and from which good fruit may be gathered.

India Again Facing Starvation

By CONRAD FINK

BAGHOLA, India (AP) — Chater Sing thought for a moment. Then, in a voice heavy with worry, he delivered his opinion.

"It's the worst in my memory," he said. "We have half stomachs. Two meals now are one."

Thus the 70-year-old villager, knowing nothing of politics or economics described the food crisis sweeping India.

Even here in the Punjab, the relatively well-off agricultural section of northwest India, people seldom are more than half full after meals. Things are much worse in other areas.

For Chater Sing and millions of other Indians are trapped by a deadly combination of bad weather, government fumbling, profiteering by greedy grain dealers and the nation's basic situation that outstrips farm production.

District Forester Donald Sumner issued a warning to area residents this morning on the careless burning of trash and debris.

The lack of rainfall over the past three weeks, Sumner said, has left fields and woodlands in a drier than normal condition for this time of year.

The possibility of careless burning of trash leading to a flare-up which will spread to forest land is a definite danger.

In a normal year the forest fire threat does not reach a danger point, Sumner pointed out, until October. The "fire season" then continues until snowfall.

This year, however, the lack of precipitation has thus far shoved the fire season forward several weeks.

The green appearance of the woodland at this time, Sumner indicated, belies the potential danger present in the dryness of the forest floor.

America's aid program in India, which has pumped in about $5.6 billion since 1951, has helped ward off disaster. Wheat shipments from the Midwest, soon to total 600,000 tons a month, are the difference between life and death for hundreds of thousands.

Few deaths have been attributed officially to starvation. There has been no repetition of the Bengal famine of 1943 when millions died.

But the eight members of Chater Sing's family subsist for days at a stretch on boiled barley broth. American wheat has gone to harder hit areas and there have been no vegetables, milk or butter, the mainstays of their diet, for a long time.

"My grandchildren don't have enough to eat," he says sadly.

In India this is an admission that hurts deeply and many families in Baghola are on strict self-imposed rationing to provide food for youngsters.

Children get first preference, pregnant women are next, working men follow. Grandparents get what's left.

As a result, apathy, a resignation to fate, has seized many in Baghola.

"It's all decided by God," Chater Sing says. As for the government: "Things are bound to be better for they are making an honest attempt."

Neither Sing nor his neighbors would eat any of their many cows and buffalos that range across the countryside, stripping it of everything green.

Animal life is sacred to orthodox Hindus like Chater Sing and this reverence for life means that birds, monkeys, rats and cattle annually munch unmolested through an estimated 10 million tons of food grain.

A reporter pointed out to farmers in Prithila village that pigeons and sparrows were eating rapidly through a bin of drying grain. Why not shoot them away?

"Where else will they go?" asked Chuni Lal. "They are our neighbors."

Stymied by such thinking and farmers who hold to traditional ways, the government has little success in increasing agricultural production. Food grain output in the last three years stagnated at 80 million tons annually. But in that time, the population soared 30 million to 465 million.

Bishop Tells of Israeli Stance Against Arab Menace

By JIM BISHOP

TEL AVIV, Israel—The next move—war or peace in the Middle East—is up to one man, Abdel Gamel Nasser of Egypt. The man with the big, friendly teeth is pledged, not merely to defeat Israel, but to complete Stage Two of Adolf Hitler's plan to exterminate the Jews. Yesterday, Shimon Peres, Vice Secretary of Defense for Israel, said: "He tells the Arab world he will drive us into the sea. We have not yet learned to swim."

FOUR MONTHS ago, at a conference of Arab leaders, Nasser permitted a television camera to record his words. For a few minutes, the gray hair and intelligent face of Nasser floated over the desert sands of Sinai, where it was picked up by Israel monitors and recorded. "Why?" he was saying in a tone of reproach. "I would like to know why? You who sit here know that we secretly pledged to join forces and wipe Jewish-Occupied Palestine off the earth in 1961. The plans were completed. The forces were ready. Now I must stand before my brothers and demand to know why nothing was done. The answer is because..."

The picture snapped off. Radio Cairo realized suddenly that this speech could be heard beyond its borders. Shimon Peres, who is really head of Israeli defense under the prime minister, is a Pole with a high forehead and a low sense of humor. "Did Nasser have to stop on the word 'because'?" he said. "We would like to know the rest of the sentence because we are 2,430,000 people facing an Arab coalition of 40,500,000."

IS THERE a new plan for war? No one in the Middle East doubts it. Nasser's desire to dominate a coalition of Arab states is based on a holy Moslem crusade against Israel. Egyptian propaganda has sown the seedlings of hatred so well that anti-war governments in Iraq, Syria, Jordan, and Saudi Arabia topple before the sickles of the reapers.

There are other factors. Dozens of them. The Arab world is primitive, oriented to the East, and life is almost as cheap as death. Israel is progressive, industrious, oriented to the United States, and is at present a European state standing in the sands of Asia. The Arabs cannot forgive Israel for winning its war of independence with small weapons and high courage.

EGYPT, the strongest of the Arab states with 27,000,000 people, cannot forgive the more recent defeat in the Sinai desert when Israeli paratroopers dropped behind their lines and captured 4,500 Egyptians with a loss of four Jews. Nor is Israel deprecating the current Egyptian campaign in Yemen, where Nasser has managed to keep an army of 30,000 men and tanks fighting for two years.

Here in Tel Aviv there is a compound of buildings guarded by soldiers and wire fences. One of the old structures, once used by German Knights Templar, is Israel's General Headquarters. The high command staff meets at least once a week to assess Arab intentions. Israel is not interested in waiting for the United Arab Republic to strike the first blow; it will attack when the Moslems begin to mass troops on its borders.

THE MEN who make the plans are: Shimon Peres, Vice Secretary of Defense; Major General Itzhak Rabin, chief of staff; Brigadier General Meir Amit, chief of intelligence; Brigadier General Azar Weizmann, chief of air force; Brigadier General Johal Ben-Nun, chief of navy. It is strange to put a general in charge of a navy, rather than an admiral, but as Peres says: "Our navy is small. We have a few destroyers and torpedo boats, but this war will not be decided on the water anyway."

Neither will it be decided on land. Israel pins its hopes, first, on the power of the United Nations to stop a war of aggression; second on the United States Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean; third on its own air force, an assortment of swift French Mirages, which can be converted from fighters to bombers overnight. The Arabs have Russian MIG-20's, a faster plane, but with the Israelis feel slower pilots.

BOTH SIDES lie about their missiles. The Arabs boast they have rockets that will destroy Israel in a few hours. Israel Intelligence is confident that the potential enemy has neither these weapons nor the sites to mount them. The Israel government, on the other hand, pretends that it has no missiles of consequence, but expects some American ground-to-air Hawks "soon."

The truth lies somewhere in the middle ground. Egypt has some SA-2 Russian missiles, two models of which are good for 400 miles and 180 miles, respectively. However, they have no nuclear warheads and are unreliable in flight. The air of confidence in Israeli Defense GHQ, and the models of ground-to-air and ground-to-ground missiles on the shelves, suggest that the Peres group is overly secretive about its weaponry.

ISRAEL IS difficult to defend. It is shaped like an underwater spear gun about 260 miles long, and is bounded on all sides by unfriendly elements: Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, and the Mediterranean Sea. Behind the spear, where the barrel of the gun begins, King Hussein and his Jordan Legionnaires enjoy a special advantage because their territory indents so deeply into Israel that, near Natanya, for example, they stand only eight miles from the sea.

For years there was a strong political group within Israel which wanted to drive Jordan back to the east side of the Dead Sea. This is now officially denounced by the government. We talked about this for a considerable time. "Our policy," said Minister Peres, "is (1). We will not attack any Arab nation; (2). We do not want to alter our borders. To do so would mean that we would have to support more Arabs, and we already have 300,000 of them in a nation of 2,430,000; (3). If the Arab coalition masses for attack, we will strike at once and, forgive me for saying this, we will win."

ALL ISRAELI men and women must serve time in the armed forces. After discharge, they serve in the Army Reserve. They are paid about $7 a month, and must hitch-hike their way home on leave. Israel can mobilize an army of 300,000 against the Arab states' 600,000. Manpower and terrain both appear to be on the Arab side, but, in warfare, motivation and moral factors are strong. The small

Behind the spear, where the barrel of the gun begins, King Hussein and his Jordan Legionnaires enjoy a special advantage because their territory indents so deeply into Israel that, near Natanya, for example, they stand only eight miles from the sea.

For years there was a strong political group within Israel which wanted to drive Jordan back to the east side of the Dead Sea. This is now officially denounced by the government. We talked about this for a considerable time. "Our policy," said Minister Peres, "is (1). We will not attack any Arab nation; (2). We do not want to alter our borders. To do so would mean that we would have to support more Arabs, and we already have 300,000 of them in a nation of 2,430,000; (3). If the Arab coalition masses for attack, we will strike at once and, forgive me for saying this, we will win."

ALL ISRAELI men and women must serve time in the armed forces. After discharge, they serve in the Army Reserve. They are paid about $7 a month, and must hitch-hike their way home on leave. Israel can mobilize an army of 300,000 against the Arab states' 600,000. Manpower and terrain both appear to be on the Arab side, but, in warfare, motivation and moral factors are strong. The small the middle ground. Egypt has some SA-2 Russian missiles, two models of which are good for 400 miles and 180 miles, respectively. However, they have no nuclear warheads and are unreliable in flight. The air of confidence in Israeli Defense GHQ, and the models of ground-to-air and ground-to-ground missiles on the shelves, suggest that the Peres group is overly secretive about its weaponry.

Alaska Drawing Interest in Oil Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alaska is drawing a new wave of interest in the never-ending search for oil. The Arctic, or north slope, area is attracting particular attention.

The files of the U. S. Geological Survey indicate the interest in the north slope area. Two new contracts for oil and gas exploration on public lands in that area, over which the agency has jurisdiction, were signed last month.

The new activity, together with continuing operations elsewhere in the 49th state, means that Alaska is on the move in building an oil and gas industry, says Rep. Ralph J. Rivers,

D-Alaska. In his words, "impressive strides" have been made—with accompanying benefits to the new state's economy.

Alaska last year produced crude oil worth $32,870,000 and natural gas valued at $1,620,000, according to a report of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. It was the state's biggest oil and gas year yet.

The report said Alaska had 55 producing oil wells at the end of the year and nine additional wells producing gas and condensate. It said 25 test wells were drilled in 1963, of which 12 turned out dry holes.

In addition to the federal lands, Alaska also has some state lands available for oil and gas leases, including some submerged lands in Cook Inlet. Rivers said two "significant" oil strikes were made in the inlet recently.

Exploratory work is continuing also in the Umiat Field area. Congress passed a bill this year authorizing the sale of some oil from the naval reserve in this area to private interests engaged in exploration in the area outside of the reservation.

Without the naval oil, the private operators were put to high costs for the oil they needed for running their machinery and for heating purposes. This oil had to be brought in by airplane or by a long overland haul.

One of the new contracts for exploration in the arctic area went to the Richfield Oil Corp. It covers approximately 590,812 acres in what is known as the Toolik area near the Arctic Ocean, approximately 350 miles north of Fairbanks.

Columbia Gas Hearing Ends; Resume Sept. 30

The first round of Public Utility Commission hearings on a rate increase asked by Columbia Gas of Pennsylvania came to an end yesterday in Pittsburgh after a day and a half of testimony.

The hearings will be resumed in Harrisburg Sept. 30 for three days.

Charles A. Massa, Columbia vice president, had told the PUC examiner that the firm is seeking an annual rate increase of $6.6 million to give it a fair return on its investment.

Testifying yesterday was P. J. D'Agostino, manager of Columbia's rate department. He was questioned by Daniel F. Joella, PUC counsel, concerning the company's rate structure.

The rate increase would affect 259,000 customers in 23 western Pennsylvania counties.

It is being challenged by Pittsburgh, Allegheny County, the Borough of Ambridge in Beaver County and 16 industrial firms.

Comet Restyled for 1965 Season

DEARBORN, Mich. — For the second consecutive year, Mercury Comet — the world's durability champion — presents an entirely new appearance and major mechanical advances.

STYLING of the 1965 Mercury Comet is fresh and exciting. The car is wider, yet sleeker. The sporty Cyclone series has its own distinctive grille and ornamentation.

Mechanical improvements include significant power train advances, more responsive steering, a new electrical system, better ride and increased comfort, and new low-profile tires. A wider choice of new options and accessories is offered.

"WE ARE looking to the 1965 Comet to add to the outstanding reputation for durability and performance which resulted in an increase of more than 50 per cent in Comet sales this year," said Paul F. Lorenz, Ford Motor Company vice president and general manager of the Lincoln-Mercury Division. Lorenz said the new Comets would go on sale in Mercury dealerships on September 25.

Over-all dimensions are changed only slightly, with width increased 1.5 inches. Wheelbase remains at 114 inches, offering maneuverability, with the ride and handling characteristics of larger cars.

FRONT END sheet metal — hood and fenders — are new for all models, along with new bumper, grille, vertical headlamps and ornamentation. Two-and four-door sedans have a new, crisp roof, giving these models a tailored look.

Rear end sheet metal — deck lid, rear quarter panels and back panels — bumper and tail-lamps are new for all except station wagons. Tailamps and rear ornamentation are new for station wagons.

INTERIORS feature a restyled instrument panel with all circular dials, plus new trim schemes and fabrics. The Cyclone has a tachometer as standard equipment and elapsed time clock and vacuum gauge optional.

Series and model line-up for 1965 remains unchanged. Base series is the 202, intermediate series the 404, luxury series the Caliente, and the Cyclone. Buckle seats are available in four of the 11 models.

A NEW 200-cubic inch, 120 horsepower six-cylinder engine with seven main bearings is offered both with standard and three-speed automatic transmission. Comets' optional three-speed dual range automatic transmission teamed to a 2.83 rear axle ratio, offers substantial improvements in both performance and economy.

Increased V-8 performance for the 1965 Mercury Comet is offered with the 289-cubic-inch engine, an option in 1964 which becomes the standard V-8. With a higher 9.3 compression ratio, this V-8 is rated at 200 horsepower with a two barrel carburetor and is designed to operate on regular grade fuel. Two optional V-8s with four barrel carburetors are offered to operate on premium fuel, a new 225 horsepower version and a high performance 271 horsepower version and a high performance 271 horsepower version which powered the Comets during the 100,000 Daytona Durability Run. The 225 horsepower V-8 is standard on the Cyclone. Improvements for performance and durability have been made in the 289-cubic-inch engine. An optional power-transfer rear axle is available.

Steering improvements are achieved from new manual steering linkage on V-8s, a new power steering pump which is quieter and more efficient, and a reduction in the power steering ratio. An optional ride and handling package for the Cyclone includes a 21.6 to one manual steering ratio and stiffer suspension.

NEW COMET MODEL — An entirely new appearance and major mechanical advances are presented in 1965 for the Mercury Comet — the world's durability champion. New front end sheet metal incorporates vertical headlamps, which are set off to advantage by the new grille. Comet's new electrical system includes an alternator as standard. Pictured is the Caliente two-door hardtop, one of 11 models in Mercury Comet's three series for 1965.

Donovan Sees Gas Service Begun in Area

Neil B. Donovan, president of the Pennsylvania Gas Co., and other officials were in Kennedy, N. Y., Wednesday to observe the initial use of gas in that area.

He praised the efforts of local citizens who signed up more than 260 potential users and said that service will soon be available to 1,000 new customers. Work on a pipeline for Kennedy and other areas east of Falconer was started June 6 and is scheduled for completion early next month.

The firm serves approximately 95,000 customers in New York and Pennsylvania.

With Donovan at the luncheon in Kennedy were E. C. Christensen, senior vice president; M. A. Peterson, assistant secretary; and J. M. Brown, chief engineer.

On the average, one person out of 10 in the U. S. walks to work.

Investing Wisely

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. Our American Legion Post recently sold its building for $125,000. We expect to invest about $30,000 and put the balance into land and a new building. Our problem is deciding where to invest this money? Some want government bonds, others local savings accounts at 4 per cent and still others preferred stocks and bonds. We expect at least $100 a month from our investment, and possibly more, with safety.

A. Until you buy a new site for your post and erect a building, I think it would be safest to treat that entire $125,000 of proceeds as a "building fund."

No one knows what a building will cost until the contractor turns it over to you, completed to the last window blind and light fixture.

Under this reasoning, I would argue for putting the entire $125,000 into insured savings and/or Treasury bonds coming due somewhere around the time you expect to have your new home ready.

If you then have $30,000 left over, you can put it into a combination of Treasury bonds, preferreds and high grade common stocks. I think a 4 per cent, $1-200 a year yield would be a logical goal.

But I would not go near common stocks with any of that $125,000 until your new home is ready and paid for.

Don't try to be a "hero" with that money—your first duty is to protect it. Besides, you can get just about as much income from Treasuries as you can from good corporate securities.

Q. About a year ago I bought U. S. Shoe Co. at the suggestion of my broker. It did very little. A few weeks ago he called and suggested I sell and buy Flintkote, instead. I went along. Almost overnight U. S. Shoe climbed about 4 points. I was unhappy about this but marked it down as just "one of those things" until today I discovered that U. S. Shoe is the 1964 newcomer to the list of 500 largest corporations. Somehow I think my broker took advantage of me for whatever reason or gain. Should I complain about this unethical performance?

A. I think you're being unduly suspicious.

It so happens this brokerage firm's research department advocated Flintkote at about the time you bought it, and your broker's suggestion of a switch was possibly nothing more than an attempt to get you into what his firm felt was a better market situation.

I don't think U. S. Shoe's addition to the 500 largest firms list meant too much to its market price, certainly not much as its steadily rising earnings reports over the last few years.

Nor do I understand why you feel your broker profited by the deal. He certainly didn't buy your U. S. Shoe stock himself.

I can't see where you can charge anything but a badly timed swap.

Q. We have some General American. Would it be advisable to sell and invest the money in some mutuals we already own? We are retired.

A. I'm puzzled about just what "General American" you mean.

There's a General America Corp. which holds stock of insurance companies and, in keeping with many insurance companies, pays little in the way of cash dividends. The price comes closest to the amount of money you mentioned.

Then there is General American Investors, a closed end investment company, which does a pretty good income job; General American Oil and General American Transportation — two good grade companies in their fields.

If it is the insurance company you mean, and you want more current income NOW, rather than wait for future gain, then a switch would be indicated.

Alcoa Turns from Water To Steam Power Plants

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—President John Harper of Aluminum Co. of America says his company is turning away from its traditional ties with water power in favor of steam power for new plants.

Accordingly, he said, Alcoa is concentrating its future attention on the Ohio Valley, with its coal supplies and water transportation. It already has an important plant at Evansville, Ind.

Harper said higher costs and administrative difficulties with dam power, relatively improved costs of coal and rising transportation costs all make it increasingly economical to produce aluminum closer to raw material supplies and to markets.

This trend, he said, would not be affected by any change in political administration that brought with it a new attitude toward public power.

He said the company plans no changes, however, at its present hydro-electric operations.

Harper, who started with the company 33 years ago at its largest hydroelectric power plant (at Alcoa, Tenn., fed by lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority), was also works manager of a plant that pioneered in the use of lignite coal for power fuel (at Rockdale, Tex., in 1951).

Aluminum is not produced by smelting, as are most other metals. It is produced by sending massive electric charges through a molten solution of alumina ores and cryolite. The metal is what collects along the lower sides of the pots. This great power need originally sent aluminum producers to cheap water-power sources. Canadian and Scandinavian producers still rely on it heavily.

Harper's comments came in answer to questions at an informal meet-the-press gathering. The 54-year-old Harper became head of the world's biggest aluminum company in April of 1963.

World News in Brief

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government's controversial proposal for a maple leaf flag for Canada has been referred to a committee after 22 days of debate in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson told the cheering House Thursday night that a committee representing all parties would take up the matter behind closed doors.

The committee will report back in six weeks. Pearson proposed adoption of the maple leaf flag as a means of unifying Canada's English-speaking and French-speaking populations.

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — A shipload of 23,000 tons of American wheat is being diverted from Pakistan to hungry India, the Pakistani government announced today.

The announcement said the diversion was requested by the Indian high commissioner in Pakistan and the U.S. Embassy in order to help ease India's current food shortage.

The Pakistani government said it had offered India another 100,000 tons of wheat from its reserves.

Dodgers: Premier Flop

LOS ANGELES — You inspect the standings of the National League and you find the world champion Dodgers 13 games off the lead and the feeling somehow grows that they will not win the pennant this year.

Which, of course, is no crime in the class, say, of shooting a policeman, or even misappropriating church funds.

But there is no shielding a hard, unvarnished truth, namely, that the Dodgers have emerged as the year's premier flop.

It is unreasonable to ask any team to win the championship every season, especially in the National League in which no club has taken pennants even back-to-back since Milwaukee did it in 1957 and '58.

But what the Dodgers have done is more than merely blow a pennant. They have defaced themselves with what is probably their worst performance since moving to Los Angeles.

You can, in fact, go a long way back to Brooklyn before putting your finger on a Dodger team that played so miserably.

By contrast, even their 1958 season was better than the present. And that year they finished next-to-last.

Excuses were more acceptable then. For one thing, they weren't coming back with a championship team. For another, they were asked to play in an alien enclosure called the Coliseum which required more than a little orientation.

No Sympathy Here

Finally, the Dodgers weren't busted, but never did they have the capital to pump into baseball that they have had the last few years.

Repeatedly, the ownership has pointed out that it declares no dividends, but, instead, hurls the profits back into the product. If this year's team is the best that money can buy, then Walter O'Malley has made a colossal mistake in not putting his gains into something more promising.

Many in the community have tended to pamper the Dodgers in their hour of sorrow, offering them a shoulder on which to weep and hanging the term "front-runner," a shingle of infamy, on those who have been critical.

If, however, it is sympathy the team is looking for, it won't find it here. The Dodger players are among the highest paid in baseball. Never has there been a payroll in which two pitchers alone earn close to $150,000 between them.

Nor has a team ever been supported in the style with which the Dodgers have in Los Angeles. Attendance records have fallen. Even in the year of its greatest embarrassment, 1964, the club will have drawn well over two million.

For such backing, the citizenry deserves better than what the Dodgers are delivering this season. This has been a race in which the team has been a contender at no time. Its bat has died and it has even degraded itself in the field with such unspeakable sins as the dropping of fly balls, resulting in losses.

The Horse Blew First

When the Dodgers lost the pennant in 1962 in a playoff with San Francisco, a state of distress seized the community. The strategy of the manager was questioned. The play of certain performers was criticized, and the feeling generally was one of suffocating shock.

The loss of a playoff, however, is mostly a matter of breaks. When a first-class club can stay in contention most of the season, tie for the lead, finish second, third or even fourth, it has fulfilled its responsibility to its backers.

But there is no valid excuse for the total pratfall of the Dodgers this year. They lost a starting pitcher, Johnny Podres, at the start of the season, but replacements were better than expected.

Now, of course, Sandy Koufax is inoperative, but long after things matter, as far as the pennant race is concerned.

Earlier in the year, when the Dodgers lost four in a row to the Giants, it was stated here that the loss by a Los Angeles team of four straight to San Francisco was tantamount to a civic disgrace.

The tone was facetious, but clippings were still collected by the Dodgers with the idea of offering them as foodstuff to the author at a later date.

It sort of suggested the old story about the man who decided to give his horse a pill by blowing it through a long tube down the horse's throat. Only the horse blew first.

Similarly for the Dodgers, six other teams in the league have blown first, and Los Angeles today is baseball's largest fizzle.

games behind league-leading Philadelphia. The Bucs dropped behind Milwaukee to sixth place.

Bob Purkey pitched a sparkling five-hitter in gaining the shutout victory over Pittsburgh, winning his 10th game against eight defeats.

He gave up singles to Bill Virdon in the first inning and Willie Stargell in the second, then retired 14 batters in a row until Stargell singled again in the seventh.

Purkey got into a minor jam in the eighth when Jim Pagliaroni led off with a double and moved to third on a passed ball. But Purkey struck out pinch-hitters Manny Mota and Smoky Burgess and got Bob Bailey on a fly ball. He struck out six and didn't walk a man.

Bob Friend, now 12-16, gave up only eight hits. Three of them came in the sixth and scored two Red runs.

Pete Rose went to first after being hit by a pitch. Then Vada Pinson, Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson followed with singles that scored two runs. Gordy Coleman grounded into a force play that scored another run.

Pittsburgh moves into Houston today for a night game with the Colts. The Bucs will start Vernon Law (10-12) against Don Nottebart (6-10).

Plan No 'Travel Day' During World Series

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—The 1964 World Series will be unique in at least one respect, and possibly in two.

There will be no travel day if only Eastern or only Midwestern teams are involved, breaking the pattern of recent years, and refuting, says Commissioner Ford Frick, the contention that the travel day was inserted in the Series program just to assure a Sunday television game.

Thus, if the Series is between the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League, and the Baltimore Orioles or New York Yankees of the American League, the Series will start Wednesday, Oct. 7, in the Phillies' park for two games, and move immediately to the American League park for the next three games.

If one team were to win four straight in the best four-out-of-seven the Series could end on Saturday. If the Series is between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds or St. Louis Cardinals there also will be no open day.

Representatives of the three closely bunched American League teams — White Sox, Yankees, and Orioles — met in Frick's office Thursday with the four National League contenders, the front-running Phillies, plus the Reds, Cardinals, and San Francisco Giants.

Orioles Remain 1 Up on Chicago

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The bases are loaded and your best hitter is up. He hangs into a triple play, but you don't worry. A run scores on the play and that sort of thing happens only to winners.

As long as Hank Bauer's Baltimore Orioles are winners, he can take the triple plays in stride. Especially if they produce runs. That's what happened in the midst of Baltimore's 12-5 victory over Washington Thursday night.

The Orioles had scored eight runs in the fourth inning and looked to be ready for some more in the fifth when Jerry Adair, Luis Aparicio and Boog Powell opened with consecutive singles loading the bases. Brooks Robinson, who had seven straight hits was the batter.

Robinson bounced to Senator shortstop John Kennedy and Adair scored as Kennedy flipped to Don Blasingame, who relayed to Joe Cunningham to complete the seemingly routine double play. But when Aparicio tried to score too, Cunningham's throw to catcher Mike Brumley caught Aparicio and produced the American League's first triple play of the season. Four triple plays had been previously recorded in the National League.

The victory kept the Orioles one game in front of Chicago, which went 10 innings before nipping Minnesota 3-2, and 1½ up on third place New York, which used home run power to drop Detroit 5-2. In the only other American League game played, Cleveland edged Boston 5-4.

Robinson had a big night except for the triple play. He reaped three singles and a double in the 17-hit Oriole attack, scoring two runs and knocking in two.

Sam Bowns contributed a three-run homer in the Orioles' big inning and also had a run-scoring double. Milt Pappas parlayed the heavy support into his 15th victory and seventh in a row.

Ron Hansen rifled his 17th homer of the season off loser Jim Kaat in the 10th inning for Chicago's victory over Minnesota. Hansen's shot came on a 3-0 pitch.

Sox starter Joel Horlen and Kaat had duelled through eight innings before Horlen left for a hitter. Hoyt Wilhelm finished up and won it for Chicago.

Elston Howard crashed a three-run homer and that was all Al Downing needed for his 12th victory as the Yankees kept pace. Joe Pepitone also homered for New York.

Downing limited the Tigers to five hits, one of them Al Kaline's 14th homer.

Pitcher Sonny Siebert and rookie Chico Salmon ripped home runs for the Indians and Don McMahon's tight relief protected the victory over the Red Sox. Dick Stuart belted his 31st homer and Tony Conigliaro got his 21st, both with a man on for Boston.

Short Leads Phils to Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I feel I'm a better pitcher than the batter is a hitter," says Chris Short.

The Philadelphia ace proved his point again Thursday but this time went one step further.

He showed he was a better hitter than all of the St. Louis batters combined by driving home the first two runs in the National League-leading Phillies' 5-1 victory over the Cardinals.

Short, in fact, belted two hits — a key triple and a single — in four times at bat.

The 26-year-old hurler came to the plate in the second inning with runners at first and third and one out. He promptly lashed a triple to the right field bullpen, bringing in Tony Taylor and Ruben Amaro with the first two runs of a five-run outburst.

Short's pitching, meanwhile, didn't suffer. He held the Cardinals to six hits while striking out 12 and walking one.

The victory was his 16th — he has seven losses — tying him with Jim Bunning as the team's winningest pitcher. The southpaw's earned run average — 1.89 — is second only to Sandy Koufax' 1.74 among NL pitchers.

Short's over-all performance was particularly vital because the victory boosted the Phillies' lead to six games over St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco.

A defeat would have moved the Cardinals to within four games of the top with the Phillies facing an important three-game series starting in San Francisco tonight. No one has been as close as four games behind Philadelphia since Aug. 15.

The Reds blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 Friday night while the Giants knocked off Los Angeles 5-1. Milwaukee nipped New York 7-7 and Chicago edged Houston 4-3 in National League afternoon games.

Johnny Callison's two-run homer climaxed the Phillies' early, but winning, rally, which was aided by errors by Ken Boyer and Dick Groat. The Cardinals scored their lone run in the second on a walk to Boyer, a single by Charley James and Bill White's double.

Bob Purkey, 10-8, pitched a five-hitter against the Pirates. The Reds scored all of their runs in the sixth inning. Bob Friend hit Pete Rose with a pitch, then gave up singles to Vada Pinson, Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson for two runs. The last run came across on a force play.

Billy Pierce, making his first start of the season, allowed six hits before needing relief help from Jim Duffalo in the eighth inning. Pierce, 3-0, singled across the last Giant run in the seventh. Jim Hart cracked his 27 homer, a two-run blast, in San Francisco's first inning.

Larry Jackson became the majors' second 19-game winner, scattering eight hits before needing relief help from Lindy McDaniel in the ninth inning.

The Colts rocked Jackson, who has lost 10 times, for three runs in the sixth, but the Cubs rallied for three runs in their half of the inning. Ernie Banks doubled across two runs and later scored on a wild pitch by reliever Hal Woodeshick.

Obituaries

(The Warren Times-Mirror does not charge for obituary notices. A small charge for advertising is made direct to the funeral directors for the notices in which the names of their funeral homes appear.)

PAUL B. WOOD

Paul Burtin Wood, 66, of Russell, died at 10:10 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 10, 1964, in Hamot Hospital in Erie.

Born in Russell on Feb. 27, 1898, Mr. Wood had been a resident of that community all his life. Prior to his retirement in July, 1963, he had been employed for 29 years as a mechanic for the Masterson Transfer Co. He was a member of Russell Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Pearl Mae Wood; four sons and two daughters, Clair A. Wood, Merion T. Wood, Mrs. Stanley (Carol) Jane, and C. Thomas Wood, all of Warren; Ivan P. Wood, Panama, N. Y.; and Mrs. M. H. (Patricia) Peterson, Richmond, Ohio; 20 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Verna Young and Mrs. Helene McClure, Warren; also several nieces and nephews.

Another son, George S. Wood, died in 1930; his mother, Maude Adams Wood, in 1947; his father, George W. Wood, in 1963; and a brother, Joseph Wood, in 1964.

His pastor, the Rev. Arthur Hummel, will conduct the funeral service at 2 p. m. Monday and burial will follow in Pine Grove Cemetery in Russell.

REBECCA T. PUNSKY

Mrs. Rebecca Theresa Punskey, 86, of 2671 Hampshire Rd., Cleveland Heights, Ohio, died in that city on Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1964.

The widow of Robert Punskey, who died about seven years ago, Mrs. Punskey was born in Lithuania in 1878. She and Mr. Punskey were married in Warren in 1899 and she resided here until a few years ago, when she went to Ohio.

Surviving are three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Ella Rosen, Mrs. Jean Aub, Mrs. Mildred Berkley and Lawrence Prescott, all of Cleveland; Clarence Punskey, Phoenix, Ariz.; and Burton J. Punskey, Warren; 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Dorothy Carter, Miami, Fla.

The funeral service was conducted in Cleveland on Thursday and burial took place in that city. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Burton Punskey and son, Norman, of Warren, and daughter, Sue Punskey of Pittsburgh; also Charles Punskey, Warren.

Funerals

PAUL B. WOOD—

Friends will be received in the Lutz-VerMilyea Funeral Home from 7 until 9 p. m. Saturday, from 2 until 4 and 7 until 9 p. m. Sunday. The service will be conducted there at 2 p. m. Monday by the Rev. Arthur Hummel, pastor of Russell Methodist Church. Burial will follow in Pine Grove Cemetery in Russell.

Princeton Firm To Study State Education

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Board of Education is planning to hire the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J., to assist in efforts evaluating the quality of teaching in Pennsylvania schools.

"A carefully selected variety of educational measuring instruments will be tried out this year in a representative body of Commonwealth schools," the board said Thursday in approving the move.

The study will be made under a $166,500 appropriation from the legislature. The New Jersey firm's fee has not been determined.

The board also voted to hire Dr. Ralph R. Fields of Columbia University to conduct a study of a comprehensive plan for community colleges.

Frank Hawkins, board member, was named to head a committee to study possible recommendations the board can make to the 1965 legislature in the administrative structure of the Commonwealth's 14 state colleges.

Art Heyman, Tom Hoover and Rookie Howard Knives of the New York Knickerbockers have been touring the Catskill mountain summer camps and conducting basketball clinics.

ice desk. On street collections were $544.50 while parking lots totaled $97.75.

"Erm" Fitzgerald, Warren's assistant fire chief said today that through fireman Robert English, injured some months ago in a traffic accident, was to undergo additional surgery yesterday in the Erie Veterans' Hospital, where he has been a patient since his removal from Warren General Hospital. Fitzgerald stated that although English's recovery will be long and slow, the reports on his progress have been most encouraging.

The medical staff at Warren State Hospital will entertain the first fall meeting of Warren County Medical Society at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday at the state institution. The guest speaker, Dr. Franklin Robinson of Wilkes-Barre, will use as his topic "Child Psychiatry Today."

Warren Barracks 1020, Veterans of World War I, and its Ladies' Auxiliary will meet at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the Stoneham Community House. The latter group will serve lunch after the business sessions.

A report will be given on the meeting of the Third District, held in Corry on Aug. 16, and the new pension law, HR-1927, will be discussed. Approved by the House last month by a 388 to 0 vote, this legislation is slated to come before the Senate this month, a spokesman for the veterans' group said.

Frank Johnson, director for the Warren Campus of Edinboro State College, will be the speaker for Tuesday's meeting of Lions Club, following the weekly luncheon in the YWCA activities building.

The Warren club, which sponsors work of the Warren County Heart Association, will send representatives to the 15th annual assembly of the state organization in York Sept. 18-20. Attending will be the president, the Rev. Frederick Kramer, Mrs. Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster, Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Valone and Mrs. Jerome Waxman.

It was learned that John T. Rodgers of Clarendon was taken to Kane Community Hospital yesterday.

Scott Votes On Losing Side In Probe Rule

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., voted with the minority Thursday as the Senate defeated, 50-37, a Republican resolution to assign its government operations committee, rather than the rules committee, to take over the reopening of the Bobby Baker investigation. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., did not vote but was announced as paired against the resolution.

Scott was with the minority as the Senate adopted, 75-3, a resolution directing the rules committee to reopen the Baker investigation and look into an alleged $35,000 payoff by Philadelphia contractor Matthew McCloskey. Clark was listed as not voting, but announced as for the passage.

Earlier, Scott voted with the minority as the Senate defeated, 49-38, a motion to table a re-appointment rider to the foreign aid bill. Clark was listed as not voting but paired for the motion.

Both Pennsylvania senators were with the majority as the Senate voted down, 63-30, a motion to close debate on the rider.

World News in Brief

LA CORUNA, Spain (AP)—The Franco government and the Spanish Roman Catholic hierarchy reached an agreement Thursday night expected to pave the way for a law giving Spain's 30,000 Protestants religious liberty.

The proposed law, sought for seven years, has the support in principle of both Gen. Francisco Franco and the Vatican.

It is believed that the law will permit Protestants to worship openly in Catholic Spain, to own church property, to publish certain church literature and Protestant Bibles and to conduct church schools.

The estimated 190 Protestant chapels now are not permitted to bear signs showing they are places of worship.

Only five of the first 30 tournaments on the 1964 PGA golf schedule required playoffs.

Geisinger—

The first, says the chief of staff, is to cure and treat the ill, placing special emphasis on those services which generally can't be provided at reasonable cost by the community hospital.

The second, to teach others, to pass on accumulated knowledge, so that other men and women will be able to cure and treat the ill.

Through the years, Geisinger-trained doctors, nurses and technicians have infiltrated the staff of many hospitals across the nation, bringing with them the knowledge absorbed in long and oftentimes lonely hours "up on the hill."

Also on the educational front, members of the Geisinger staff teach one day each week at various schools of medicine in Philadelphia and actively participate in dozens of seminars every year.

Within recent months, Geisinger and Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., entered into an affiliation which, when fully implemented, will create formal graduate education programs in the basic and clinical sciences at the resident level.

Right now, the focus of attention is on the facilities soon to be dedicated and known by the awesome name of "The Frueauf Foundation Center for Roentgenology, Radiation Therapy and Nuclear Medicine," made possible to a large extent by a grant from the Frueauf Foundation of New York City.

And after that, what? Dr. Bush responds: "It wasn't too long ago that we completed a building program. That added 132 beds to give us a present bed capacity of near 400, plus the 13-room operating suite.

"Despite this, our waiting list continues at 250 patients, so the space is still vitally needed. Preliminary planning is now under way for a new building to house a vastly improved emergency room, rehabilitation and physical therapy section, chronic care area, new pediatrics floor, a new obstetrics and gynecology department, and, of course, more beds.

"Too, we are the only hospital directly on the route of the Keystone Shortway and this fact alone presents new challenges and new concerns for everyone here."

Florida—

300-mile spread of gales and peak winds of 95 m.p.h., churned westward from a spot about 800 miles east of Palm Beach.

"It's a good three days away, even if it should maintain its present course," said chief forecaster Gordon Dunn. "We're not making any predictions at this point."

Although power was still largely out, Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Brunswick pitched into a monumental repair and cleanup job.

More than 30,000 persons who spent two nights on the hard floors of churches, schools and armories in Georgia, Florida and South Carolina returned to their homes.

Some had no homes left. Fourteen houses north of St. Augustine were demolished. The huge tides and driving waves cut the land from under them and they washed away.

However, considering Dora's massive reach, structural damage was relatively light.

The worst destruction was caused by flood waters. They ran waist deep in the streets of St. Augustine during high tide.

Florida's valuable citrus crop, which escaped with little damage, was menaced by the torrential rains. Standing water can rot the roots of young trees within a few days.

Tons of leaves, limbs, shingles, signs, awnings, antennas, tiles, glass, wires, poles and trees littered streets.

Majestic old oaks that lined the streets of St. Augustine for decades lay on their sides. Palms were scattered like toothpicks.

Damage to the roads in Duval County, which is metropolitan Jacksonville, was estimated at $5 million. Stretches of U.S. A-1, the highway that parallels the Atlantic all the way down the coast, was under water. In places it was ripped away.

Dora gave Jacksonville and St. Augustine their worst beatings from a hurricane in this century.

It was the worst in 20 years for Brunswick, a resort city 60 miles north of here. The pounding sea and 85 m.p.h. winds collapsed several homes and damaged a handful of motels.

Thousands returned to their beach and island homes in South Carolina, where damage was slight.

People in the News

NEW YORK (AP)—Singer Abbe Lane, divorced three months ago from band leader Xavier Cugat, says she's going to marry Hollywood theatrical agent Perry Leff as soon as he gets a divorce.

"We haven't set a definite date," said Miss Lane, 30. "We hope it will be in the near future."

Miss Lane, who's appearing at a New York night club, said she met Leff, 38, in July. He already was in the process of getting a divorce, she said.

Bryan—

will be given only one "shot," two months apart.

In connection with the present clinics, Dr. Bryan said that there are three classes of people to be considered.

Those who previously received all three doses need to come to a clinic on only one of the four days established—Sept. 13 and 20 and Nov. 15 and 22.

Those who missed one or two doses because they were out of town for various reasons should visit a clinic Sunday or the following Sunday and again in November.

Those who have never taken the Sabin oral polio vaccine should visit a clinic in both September and November.

The vaccine will also be administered differently this time, Dr. Bryan said. Previously, it was 2 cc., about a half teaspoonful, given in a paper cup. This time it will be two drops on a cube of sugar.

Let anyone worry about the sugar, Dr. Bryan hastened to add that there is not enough sugar involved to "upset the balance" where people are not supposed to have sugar in their diets.

"And if they just don't like sugar," he said, "we'll give it to them right out of the dropper."

The medical society is asking a 50 cent donation, but Dr. Bryan assures all who visit the clinics that no one will actually be asked for the money, which is to be used to defray the cost of the vaccine. Those who cannot afford the small charge will be given the vaccine. Those who wish to donate more are welcome to do so.

This is a community effort, Dr. Bryan emphasized. Doctors and nurses are volunteering their services to man the seven clinics and other volunteers are serving as aides.

The physicians urge the cooperation of the public in their effort to make the county polio-free.

"Be sure to visit a clinic Sunday," Dr. Bryan said. "Bring the whole family. The vaccine is for everyone from three months to 103."

The clinics will be open from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. at each of seven convenient locations: Warren, Beaty cafeteria; Russell, the new elementary school; Columbus, Fire Hall; Youngsville, Grange Hall; Sugar Grove, the new school; Sheffield, township building; Tidouate, the new school.

Each family should clip a coupon from The Times-Mirror on which names and ages can be listed so that lines at the clinics will move rapidly.

County School Directors View Budgets, Reports of Auditors

The Warren County Board of School Directors met last evening in the Court House to inspect budgets and financial and auditors' reports, and to approve measures that have come up since their last meeting on July 9.

INSPECTION of school district budgets for 1964-65 for Conewango and Corydon townships, and of the annual financial reports for Elk, Pleasant, Spring Creek, Deerfield, Limestone and Tidouate townships, Bear Lake and Tidouate boroughs, Brokenstraw Valley, Farmington-Pine Grove, and Tidouate Area Joint was made.

Also looked over were auditors' reports for Spring Creek, Limestone and Tidouate townships and Tidouate borough and area joint schools. John Mallory Jr., superintendent, pointed out that a copy of each is sent to the Dept. of Public Instruction in Harrisburg, and a copy of the auditors reports are on file in the Prothonotary's office of the Court House.

AS THERE was no Board meeting last month, various items in the Special Education program needed the formal ratification of the Board. New personnel has been hired to work with the trainable, non-educable group of children who have IQ's of 50 or less. Expenses incurred with the Special Education classes for materials, toys, work table, and the transfer of equipment from Spring Creek were presented. Transportation contracts to bring these children in from Pleasant Twp., Youngsville, Russell, Sugar Grove, Lander, and Sheffield were also presented. Motions were made and seconded that all items be approved.

As the County Board is the sponsoring agent of the Warren Campus of Edinboro State College, Mallory noted that it was registration night there, and he was pleased with the developments. He mentioned the campaign to raise funds to buy furnishings for the building not otherwise provided for by the college, and said around $3,000 had been solicited. The Warren County Commission on Higher Education is preparing the by-laws for the Campus, and they suggested the County Board look over and approve of them, Mallory said.

But he thought, and other officials apparently agreed, that support of the guerrillas is imposing a heavy burden on Communist North Viet Nam and this is certain to grow heavier as the contest continues.

At some point the leadership of North Viet Nam, Taylor believes, will very likely be faced with a choice whether to cut its losses in South Viet Nam or to take an increasingly grave risk of its own economic collapse.

This risk would obviously be increased if the United States decided to put on additional pressures by expanding military operations beyond the borders of South Viet Nam and launching air strikes against targets in the north. The North Vietnamese have already had a demonstration of the destructive effects of such operations in the attacks which were made on patrol boat bases in August.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a news conference Thursday that talks now under way in Paris among Communist and non-Communist leaders in Laos might give some indication of the intentions of Red China in North Viet Nam about continuing their aggression in Southeast Asia.

"If there are no indications that Hanoi and Peiping are prepared to leave their neighbors to the south alone," Rusk said, "then we know pretty clearly that they have not yet come to that decision which they must ultimately reach to leave their neighbors alone and we will have to go on from there."

"But I don't see any prospects for fruitful negotiations on Viet Nam at the present time, because we have no indication that the other side is prepared to stop its illegal aggression against a neighbor," he added.

Former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Taylor's predecessor in Saigon, reported to President Johnson Thursday on a tour of Europe where he conferred with allied government leaders on recent developments in Viet Nam. Lodge said Johnson was pleased to hear that nine or 10 more friendly nations are planning to give non-military help to South Viet Nam.

Such aid is now being given by the United States, Britain, Australia, New Zealand and France.

Jury Wants Boy Held in Death

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An Allegheny County coroner's jury has recommended that an 18-year-old boy be held for the grand jury on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Leonard Messner of Clinton R. D. 1 in Allegheny County was ordered held Thursday. He was involved in a two-car crash on Route 30 about 10 miles west of Pittsburgh last May 31 in which Ernest Hufnagel, 57, of Clinton was killed. Messner was injured.

Look to "The Times-Mirror" to deliver More newspapers per day to more families than any other area publication!

THERE ARE 10,567 pupils in the county schools, including kindergarten. This is an increase of 67 over last year, in spite of the fact that three classes at Spring Creek are no longer on the roll call. In ten years the number of teachers employed has jumped from 190 to 260.

Oct. 19 is County Professional Day. The theme selected is "Education in a Changing Society" from the book of the same name by Dr. Richard Miller. The book concerns itself with the moral and spiritual values in school as opposed to the stress on scientific subjects, said Mallory. He recommended that all teachers obtain a copy and read it before Oct. 19. Dr. Miller will be the keynote speaker.

DR. STEELE Gow, of the new Learning Research and Development Center at the University of Pittsburgh, will be present to give the summary address. One of the Center's projects is the building of a "21st century classroom" on the third floor of Pitt's Mineral Industries Building. Aided by $73,000 in equipment from Westinghouse Electric Corp., an ultra-modern classroom filled with the latest teaching machines has been assembled by scientists.

Dr. Everett Landin, who has been working with Special Projects at the Dept. of Public Instruction and is moving to Clarion State College, will be the coordinator for the meeting.

TODAY in WASHINGTON

— By The Associated Press —

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House leadership has set next Thursday for a vote on the proposal to finance medical care for the elderly through Social Security.

The vote will come on the question of whether to send the bill, passed by the Senate, to a conference of both houses. The Senate attached a medical care rider to a bill previously passed by the House.

Backers of the proposal are expected to seek a vote instructing conferees to take certain positions on the measure. If so, it would be the first time that the principle of Social Security financings of hospital care for persons over 65 has come to a vote in the House.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, says U.S. continental aerospace defense is strong in the areas of early warning and command and control.

Addressing a meeting of the Air Force Association Thursday, LeMay said fighters equipped with new intercept radar and infrared search and track equipment plus Lomarc missiles are on continuous alert.

Parents Suing Amusement Firm

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Parents of three Brentwood children injured while riding in a rotating barrel at a fair last May 17 have sued the Ken-Penn Amusement Co. of New Kensington for more than $30,000.

The suit filed in Allegheny County Court Thursday said Pamela Ihrig, 9, and Cheryl, 9, and Raymond Ames, 11, suffered lacerations and other injuries at the fair.

Buffalo has replaced Lehigh on Cornell's football schedule this fall.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With a bow Thursday to William Shakespeare, Secretary of State Dean Rusk swore in James L. Greenfield as assistant secretary for public affairs.

Drawing from the bard's play Anthony and Cleopatra, Rusk envisioned Greenfield saying to State Department officials, "Pour out the pack of matter to mine ear, the good and bad together."

And, from the same play, he said Greenfield might get this response from department officials: "Though it be honest, it is never good to bring bad news; give to a gracious message an host of tongues; but let ill tidings tell themselves."

"Nuts" would be Greenfield's non-Shakespearean reply, Rusk conjectured.

SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of a writ of Execution (Money Judgment) issued out of the Court of Common Pleas of Warren County, Pennsylvania, and to me directed, there will be sold at the Warren County Court House, Warren, Warren County, Pennsylvania on MONDAY, September 21, 1964 at 10 o'clock A.M. Eastern Daylight Savings time

ALL THAT CERTAIN piece of parcel of land situate in Watson Township, Warren County, Pennsylvania, described as follows: BEGINNING at the public road on the southwesterly line of land of Wm. Rounds; thence in a northerly direction along said line 740 feet, more or less, to low water mark of the Allegheny River; thence up said river in a northeasterly direction 350 feet to a point; thence in a southerly direction, parallel with the first line 740 feet more or less to the public road; thence southwesterly along said road exactly 350 feet to the place of beginning, containing five (5) acres, more or less. Excepting and reserving such portions thereof conveyed by Joseph H. Matie to grantees by deeds recorded in Deed Books and Pages as follows: Nettie Matie, 183-390, and 180-117; Earl R. Albaugh and wife, 172-464, 182-243; and Frank P. Schutz and wife 268-289; Norman J. Anderson and wife 302-253 and 287-429; David C. Anderson and wife 287-431; Wm. Lee Miller and wife, 287-448; Victor Miller and wife, 288-168; Charles E. Craft and wife, 288-250; Edward Anderson and wife 295-227; Lenhart Walnaha and wife, 306-127; Walter Halley and wife, 306-129; Sherman Padzelek and wife, 310-209; Elizabeth Ross, 312-297; and Frank Keifer and wife, 312-488. Having erected thereon four frame summer dwellings. Being further identified on Warren County Tax Map as Map and parcel No. TD 313-452.

Together with all and singular, the said property, improvements, and appurtenances whatsoever thereunto belonging, or in any-wise appertaining.

Seized and taken in execution and will be sold as the property of Joseph Matie, Sr., and Helen V. Matie, wife, at the suit of Youngsville National Bank now by merger Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company.

Notice is hereby directed to all persons in interest and claimants that a schedule of distribution will be filed by the Sheriff on October 2, 1964, and that distribution will be made in accordance with the schedule unless exceptions are filed thereto within ten days thereafter.

Your Forest Ranger

By L. E. STOTZ

Long before all the bustling activity on the Upper Allegheny River had sounded the death knell for the town of Kinzua, travelers crossing the highway bridge on Route 68 at Dew Drop could observe an immense sandstone out-cropping frowning down upon them like a medieval fortress perched on the plateau rim.

MORE ADVENTUROUS travelers, eager for a bird's eye view of the valley, fought their way up the steep rocky slope on foot and were rewarded by a magnificent panorama from the rocky rim. But most people lacked the time and the energy to make the assault on this natural fortress.

Now the overlook has been made accessible to all who care enough to walk a short distance from a paved parking lot near the plateau rim. An excellent paved road leads off from the new portion of Route 59 from the Marshburg area.

THE SCENIC overlook, with its network of trails, and a 30-unit picnic area developed on this portion of Allegheny National Forest has been appropriately named "Rimrock."

Today, the visitor, standing behind a prospective stone wall that zig-zags around the outer edges of a rock lip, can look down upon the tree covered valley cut by Kinzua Creek. In another month, the forest at its feet will "burn" with the "fires of autumn" as the fall coloring reaches its climax. In the years ahead, he will see this grand spectacle reflected in the cool waters of a lake 530 feet below him.

FOR THOSE who like to become intimate with the gray sandstone cliffs all about them at Rimrock, there is a fascinating trail that threads its way into the cavernous depths of the living rock down a nearly vertical stairway of stone steps cunningly fitted into a deep fissure. From the foot of the stone stairway, the trail winds along brushy against the overhanging cliff. Passing frigid Cave, the hiker feels a cold blast of air strike him from a deep recess in the cliff even on the hottest day in summer. Passing at Dungeon Corridor, he may be reminded of the Prisoner of Chillon chained to a pillar in his dungeon in the Castle of Chillon. If he is thirsty from his hike, he may pause and refresh himself at Rock Spring where ice cold water flows out of a fountain from a moss-covered spring protected by a rustic chestnut pole fence at the base of a cliff.

On the horizon line across Kinzua Valley from Rimrock Overlook, visitors may clearly see Coal Knob Fire Tower. Only a short distance below it lies Jakes Rocks Overlook which will soon be connected by a paved road from the new Route 59.

FROM THE South Rock of this developed overlook, now reached by a graveled woods' road from Brown Run, the visitor may look down upon the huge Allegheny River dam which is nearing completion. A short hike along a woodland trail to the North Rock affords the visitor a wonderful view of the river valley which will shortly contain the main body of water comprising the Allegheny Reservoir or Lake Kinzua. As at Rimrock, a large picnic area has been developed in addition to the overlook itself.

From Jakes Rocks and Rimrock overlooks the recreationist, and any others passing through the Allegheny National Forest, will be assured of exciting panoramas surrounding the blue waters of the impounded Allegheny River.

Two Philadelphia Papers Endorse Johnson's Stand

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Daily News in today's editions, endorsed Democrat Lyndon Johnson for President.

The two newspapers are owned by Walter Annenberg. Both list themselves as independent politically.

It is the first time that the morning Inquirer has ever endorsed a Democrat for president. In 1960 it supported Republican Richard M. Nixon over John F. Kennedy.

The news, an afternoon tabloid, supported Nixon four years ago. In 1956, when Matthew McCloskey owned the newspaper, the News endorsed Democrat Adlai Stevenson.

The Inquirer said "Lyndon Johnson's qualifications as president have been demonstrated where they count most, in the presidency itself. His record in that office is his highest recommendation for election to a full term." It also said:

"This newspaper is convinced that it would be disastrous for this nation, disastrous for the two-party system, and disastrous for world peace, to have Barry Goldwater in the White House."

The News editorial, headlined "let's march forward with President Johnson," said in part, "the assassination of youthful, brilliant, inspiring President John F. Kennedy became Lyndon Johnson's crucible—and he tested out as being worthy of the presidency in time of tension and trial, tribulation and turmoil." It added:

"The candidate from Arizona claims to be 'in the mainstream of Republican thinking'—but on this we do not agree. Sen. Goldwater impresses us as a man determined to march backward into the past.

"We believe Americans prefer to march forward into the future."

President Fires Up State's Democrats With Slashing Attack on Goldwater

By JACK LYNCH

HARRISBURG (AP) — President Johnson fired up Pennsylvania Democrats Thursday night with a speech that had them chanting happily in response to key phrases.

Johnson, grinning broadly, delivered sharp barbs against his Republican opponent, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Goldwater has said he offers "a choice, not an echo."

Five-thousand sweltering shirt-sleeved diners, who paid $100 a head to swell the state party's election year chest, filled the huge farm show exhibition hall with laughter and applause as Johnson, condemning extremism in a departure from his text, declared:

"We are a nation of lovers and not a nation of haters." Johnson drew another long round of applause with:

"Your leaders tell me that nearly every county of this great state of Pennsylvania has made registration gains. The edge is the kind of edge that we like—3 to 1."

"I want to conclude by reminding you that you still have three more days to register."

Democrats apparently felt the 25,000 cost of carrying the president's speech in a half-hour of live television over a network of seven Pennsylvania stations was well worth the expense.

The president called Miss Genevieve Blatt, candidate for U.S. Senator, to the rostrum, gave her a mighty one-armed hug and urged her election over Republican Sen. Hugh Scott.

Johnson also pleaded party leaders by calling them up one by one and raising their arms high in the boxer's symbol of victory.

They included Sen. Joseph S. Clark, former Gov. David L. Lawrence, Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia, Mayor Joseph Barr of Pittsburgh and Francis R. Smith, Philadelphia Democratic Chairman.

Johnson and his wife spent about an hour and a half here after a flight from Washington by helicopter.

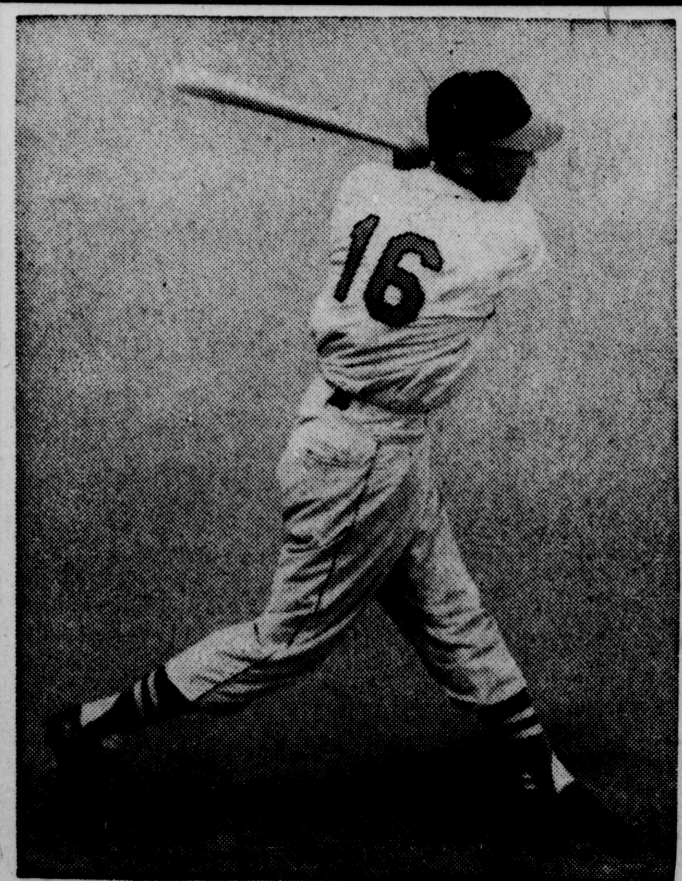

He was greeted on a parking lot in the Farm Show Building Complex by a crowd of about 3,000, then was taken by limousine to the main building where he first attended a private reception for some 75 Pennsylvanians who contributed 1,000 or more to the presidential campaign.

While waiting inside, the 5,000 who kicked in $100 dined on beef tenderloin, boiled potatoes and peas with mushrooms.

The men doffed their jackets as temperatures in the hall rose above the 90-degree mark.

Otis B. Morse, Democratic state chairman, ran a brisk pro-

Goldwater Believes High Court Dangerous

By ARTHUR EDSON

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today that the Supreme Court, by not using judicial restraint, threatens our present system of government.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the American Political Science Assn., the Republican presidential candidate said:

"I weigh my words carefully when I say that — of all three branches of government — today's Supreme Court is the least faithful to the constitutional tradition of a limited government, and to the principle of legitimacy in the exercise of power."

Twice Thursday Goldwater criticized the court's decision on reapportionment of state legislatures. Today he was again critical of that decision, as well of its verdict in the school prayer case.

He cited these to illustrate his contention the court is moving into areas he doesn't think it should be in.

"I do not doubt for one minute that law must keep up with the changing times," Goldwater said. "But the job of keeping the law up to date should be in the hands of the legislatures, the Congress, and the common law courts, not just in the hands of the nine appointed justices of the Supreme Court."

Goldwater said today's court operates differently from those in the past.

"Until recent years," he said, "the Supreme Court itself has exercised judicial restraint with respect to acts of Congress with which it disagreed but which were founded on legitimate exercise of legislative power."

"But not the Supreme Court of today!"

This is the last day of Goldwater's first week of official campaigning. He has a speech at Rockford, Ill., late today, and then it's back to Washington for the weekend before taking his drive for the presidency into the South next week.

Goldwater began his speech to the political scientists by hitting on a familiar theme — the growth of presidential power, which he says can upset the system of checks and balances between the executive, legislative and judiciary branches of government. Repeatedly he has accused President Lyndon B. Johnson of being "power mad."

"To a constitutionalist," Goldwater said, "it is at least as important that the use of power be legitimate than that it be beneficial."

And with this he switched his attack to the court and its prayer and reapportionment verdicts.

"The decisions are defended, implicitly or explicitly, on the grounds that the results are desirable: that it really isn't good for children to say prayers in school, and that it really is desirable to have state legislatures, in their entirety, apportioned on a one man, one vote basis," Goldwater said.

"The question, under our system of government, is not simply what decision is right but also who has the right to decide."

And Goldwater declared: "If we exalt a 'strong executive' or a 'strong judiciary' — or, indeed, a 'strong legislature' — at the expense of the checks and balances of federalism, and the principle of legitimacy in government, we travel away from greatness as a nation."

"We will move toward the manipulative state, where the forms of federalism remain, but are ineffective — where governmental power is concentrated in a few officials who are only nominally responsible to the public will, and where freedom is nothing but a campaign slogan."
